65,000 State Carpenters Stand in Back of Wicks

250 Delegates Give Unanimous Vote for His Stand on Labor

Unanimous support for Lt. Gov. Arthur H. Wicks in his rift with Governor Thomas E. Dewey over visits to Joseph S. Fay convicted extortionist in Sing Sing Prison was voted yesterday by the New York State Council of Carpenters in convention at Glens Falls.

The state council, according to George E. Yerry of Kingston, who introduced the resolution on Wicks, represents approximately 65,000 union workers throughout the state.

Yerry, president of the Hudson Valley District Council of Carpenters, read the resolution to 250 assembled delegates Friday at 5 p. m. and it received unanimous support, he told a Freeman reporter.

When the resolution, stressing Wicks' interest in "maintaining harmony between labor and management on public works jobs involving millions of dollars," was read, five locals of the state council seconded the motion to stand behind the lieutenant governor.

Door Always Open

The resolution further stressed that "Wicks was always on the side of legislation favorable to our organization as well as to all organized labor and that his door was always open for consultation."

Wicks' interest was cited in New York city water projects such as the Merriman, Neversink and Downsville watersheds and power plants in connection therewith and on public housing projects in Kingston.

Yesterday's convention of carpenters was the second organized labor assemblage to back Wicks, who was given a vote of confidence recently at a session of spokesmen for the Ulster-Sullivan Trades Council, which was said to represent 40,000 labor affiliates along the Hudson valley.

William Sorenson, president of the Dutchess County Trades Council, was present at the Kingston meeting and added his endorsement of Wicks along with other union representatives.

Delegates present from the Hudson Valley Council of Carpenters, besides Yerry, at the Glens Falls convention, are Hyman Zamansky of Liberty; George Masterson of Poughkeepsie; Joseph Raymond of Monticello; Louis Greenstein of Ellenville; and George W. Race of Kingston, who is vice president of the Ulster-Sullivan Counties Building Trades Council.

Carpenters' Resolution

WHEREAS the local unions representing the Hudson Valley District of Carpenters and particularly the counties of Ulster, Sullivan and Delaware, before the present practice of trial by newspaper of all friends of organized labor and

WHEREAS such a condition now exists with regard to Lt. Governor Arthur H. Wicks and

WHEREAS Lt. Gov. Wicks has on numerous occasions, and at our request, assisted our Carpenters' Union and other building trade unions in maintaining harmony between labor and management on public works jobs involving millions of dollars, particularly the New York City water projects such as the Merriman, Neversink and Downsville watersheds and power plants in connection therewith and on public housing projects in the City of Kingston the action of certain building trade unions created situations which involved much controversy and bitterness beyond our control.

THEREFORE, it became necessary for us to ask the then Senator Arthur H. Wicks for his intervention which he wholeheartedly did without fear of consequence. In nearly every instance, the disputes were settled satisfactorily. The record also shows that the then Senator Arthur H. Wicks was always on the side of legislation.

Arrest Each Other For Reckless Driving

Two Kingston drivers arrested each other early this morning on charges of reckless driving following a collision at Cornell street and Abruyn avenue.

Each was paroled for appearance in city court Monday morning.

John H. Whalen, 30, of 351 South Wall street traveling south on Cornell street, was in collision with an automobile operated east on Abruyn avenue by Albert H. Spiegel, 18, of 44 Montrose avenue at 1:10 a. m. police reported.

Officers Harold Bowers and Floyd Krom, who investigated, reported that Whalen suffered a bruised left leg and Spiegel a bump on the left forehead. They were examined at Kingston Hospital but were not admitted.

Both cars had to be towed away, police said. The Whalen car was damaged in the front end and the steering wheel and the Spiegel vehicle in the left side.

Queens Carpenter Caught With $125 Taken From Jeweler; Wishes He Was Shot

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—An unemployed carpenter who was captured after a hot chase down crowded Sixth avenue last night told police he had staged a hold-up to obtain funds to pay medical bills.

The carpenter, booked as Etore Sorigini, 31, of 1440 28th avenue, Astoria, Queens, was captured immediately after robbing a jeweler of $125.

Sorigini told police his wife had just undergone a lung removal and that his father-in-law was dying of cancer.

Without funds and out of work, he said, he had decided on a hold-up—his first—to raise money. All went smoothly at first.

Senator Scores Brownell's Clearance for McCarthy

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Sen. Monroney (D.-Okla.) said today that Atty. Gen. Brownell, in finding Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) broke no fraud or election laws, "is giving a clean bill to all the ugly features of one of the dirtiest political campaigns in recent history."

Brownell announced yesterday that, after looking into questions raised by a Senate subcommittee, the Justice Department found no evidence of fraud or election law violations in McCarthy's personal finances or activities in the 1950 Maryland senatorial campaign.

While McCarthy's income is still under investigation by the treasury, Brownell said, the Justice Department is bowing out of the matter. He said it would make no further inquiry and would seek no grand jury action.

Similarly cleared was former Sen. William Benton (D.-Conn.), whom McCarthy had accused of campaign fund irregularities. Benton had sought to have McCarthy ousted from the Senate.

Answers Wagner Charge on Important Man; Uses Term Crazy in Reply

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey has denied a charge by Democratic mayoral candidate Robert F. Wagner Jr., that one of the governor's "closest political associates on the national scene" tried to get parole for a convicted labor extortionist.

Wagner, in an "emergency" radio broadcast yesterday challenged Dewey to deny the allegation. Dewey promptly denied it and added:

"Apparently Wagner is trying to charge that some member of the national administration appealed to me unsuccessfully in the interest of Joseph Fay."

"I always thought the boy (Wagner) was stupid, but never before thought he was crazy. No such appeal has ever been made to me by anyone connected with the national administration."

Wagner's charge pointed up the political tension in the case of Fay—an AFL union official jailed for shaking down contractors for $386,000, and who had been visited in Sing Sing prison by state and national figures.

Wagner's Challenge

In his broadcast, Wagner said: "I call on the governor to deny that one of the men who tried to get Fay out of jail was and is one of Dewey's closest political associates on the national scene."

Far Eastern Problem Is Knotty One

Big Three Ministers Are Plagued by Crises of International Scope in Talks

London, Oct. 17 (AP)—The Big Three western foreign ministers, plagued by fresh international crises, tackled the knotty Far Eastern situation today.

For 90 minutes, informed sources said, the western policy makers covered among other things the question of the start and makeup of the Korean peace conference, including the possibility of the admission of neutral Asian nations, the future status of Communist China, and the French war against Red-led rebels in Indochina.

Even while America's John Foster Dulles, Britain's Anthony Eden and France's Georges Bidault deliberated in the British foreign office, special committees were hard at work hammering out a common policy on other issues.

Explosive Issues

These included the explosive Trieste question, the Israeli-Jordan border situation, and a new approach to the Soviet Union based on western pledges of non-aggression.

It was announced, meantime, that Prof. Walter Hallstein, West German foreign under secretary, would arrive here late today to lay Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's views on the Russian question before the Big Three.

Dulles, accompanied by U. S. Ambassador Winthrop Aldrich, had an hour's private talk with Eden before the full conference got underway. The American secretary of state will confer privately with Bidault before the afternoon session begins.

Tough Problems

In addition to the non-aggression pact, the ministers faced decisions on several tough problems as they neared the half-way mark of their three-day session. Among these were:

1. An urgent British proposal to bring an Israeli attack on three border Jordan villages before the United Nations Security Council. Fifty-six Arabs reportedly were killed in the assault which Britain blasted yesterday as "apparently

Jersey Woman Injured In Route 32 Collision

Mildred Young, 33, of Jersey City, N. J., was taken to Kingston Hospital this morning for treatment of injuries to her right foot and ankle received when the automobile in which she was riding was in collision with another vehicle on Route 32 about one mile north of the East Chester street bypass intersection at 9:20 a. m. today, a police report said.

Mrs. Young was riding in a sedan driven by her husband, Ralph Young, 37 and accompanied by their daughter, Barbara, 12. The daughter received no apparent injuries but was taken to the hospital for a checkup, the report said.

The other car, troopers said, was driven by William C. Boughton, 18, of RD 1, Kingston. Boughton was not reported hurt.

The collision occurred when the vehicles met on a slight downgrade and curve in the highway, the report said.

No arrests were made.

Stepping Up the Probe

Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) is flanked by Major Gen. George I. Back, left, head of the Army Signal Corps, and Major Gen. Kirke Lawton, commandant at Fort Monmouth, N. J., as they leave a meeting of the former's Senate investigating subcommittee in New York, Oct. 16. Senator McCarthy said the generals were questioned about a report that a German scientist had fled from the eastern zone of Germany with information about secret documents which had disappeared from Fort Monmouth and were used by the Communists.

Witness Says Agent Asked $10,000 on Fix

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—A prosecution witness says a former internal revenue agent in the Albany area once told him that he owed the federal government "a whole lot more money but I can take care of it for you for $10,000."

The witness, Morris Spector, of Hudson, a principal in Spector Brothers Inc., testified yesterday in the federal trial of five former internal revenue agents in the Albany area.

Spector said he was visited in July, 1946, by Murray Talanker, of Albany, one of the defendants, and H. Harold Miller, former Catskill accountant. Miller is a government witness and has been named as a co-conspirator in the case.

Made Visit

Miller and Talanker made the visit after questions were raised about Spector's 1942-44 income tax returns, Spector testified.

Talanker, according to the witness, said that Spector owed the federal government "a whole lot more money but I can take care of it for you for $10,000."

Spector would have to be "a lot of crucifying" before he paid that amount and that if any money was due he wanted to pay the government. He said he told them "if you fellows push me" he would seek advice from two brothers-in-law who practice accounting and law.

Set His Figure at $1,500

He said they came down to $3,000, and that when he met Miller some weeks later in an Albany restaurant he told Miller

Three Po'keepsie Men Are Hurt at Middlehope

Track Licensees Will Get Question List From Probers

Must Report All Payments Including Fees Given So-Called Labor Trouble Fixers

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—Detailed questionnaires may be mailed today to the licensees of the state's eight harness racing tracks.

George Trosk, a member of three-men special commission to probe the harness racing industry, said yesterday the forms were ready for distribution.

The detailed questionnaires, with answers to be given under oath, are said to be designed to uncover hidden stock interests in any of the tracks and to provide a basis for personal interrogation.

In addition to a complete financial history, a record of all payments must be made—including fees to so-called labor trouble fixers.

The Moreland Act Commission was set up by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to turn the harness racing industry "upside down" in efforts to ferret out graft and corruption.

Former Judge Bruce Bromley is chairman of the new commission. The third member is John F. Brosnan.

Troopers Say Only One Car in Accident; Injured Riders Can't Talk Yet

Three Poughkeepsie men were seriously injured in an automobile accident on Route 9W at Middlehope about 2:45 a. m. today.

State police identified the injured as:

Rolf Reinertsen, age unavailable of 71½ Union street, who suffered serious internal injuries.

Vincent Simpson, 28, no street address, who suffered a possible skull fracture.

Martin Habinowski, 38, of 93 Bellevue avenue, who received multiple body lacerations.

All were taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh where Reinertsen is on the critical list and the condition of the other two was reported as serious, troopers said.

Troopers of the Newburgh station said they believed that Habinowski was the driver of the car but they were unable to determine the cause of the accident because of the condition of the occupants. Only one car was involved and the investigation is being continued.

Channel Swimmer Back

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—Attractive endurance swimmer Florence Chadwick flew home today. As she landed at Idlewild Airport Miss Chadwick reiterated that such triumphs as her recent swimming of the English Channel, the Straits of Gibraltar, the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles were things of the past. Some exhibitions, yes—but no more "long grinds."

"I have the records now and anything else would be an anticlimax," she told newsmen. "I've double-crossed all the channels I'm going to try."

Trio Is Summoned to Tell About Army Camp Spy Ring

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) summoned into closed hearings today three witnesses who reportedly were named by an army employee said to have promised to "tell all" about a radar spy ring.

McCarthy called a special Saturday session of his Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, saying it was most important to question the trio following the army employee's testimony yesterday concerning an alleged espionage ring at Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

Today's witnesses are understood to include present and former employees at Ft. Monmouth.

An indication of the importance McCarthy attached to today's session was his indefinitely deferring a visit to the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., to question David Greenglass, brother-in-law of executed atom spy Julius Rosenberg.

McCarthy has described Rosenberg as mastermind of a spy ring at Ft. Monmouth, Army Signal Corps headquarters of America's top secret radar defense against atomic attack.

The senator also said he believed some documents concerning radar defense secrets were sent by espionage agents to Communists in East Germany.

However, the army said today in Washington it has no evidence that microfilm copies of secret data from the Ft. Monmouth Signal Corps laboratory have fallen into Communist hands in Germany.

The army indicated its belief, in response to questions, that if any microfilm copies of signal corps documents are in Communist hands they probably are some given the Russians during the period of World War 2 cooperation.

An army spokesman, referring back to January, 1952, when documents first were reported missing at Ft. Monmouth, said:

"The statement made in 1952 that there was no evidence that any documents had been compromised or that files had been tampered with in the Signal Corps Intelligence Agency is still correct."

In New York, there was no immediate comment from McCarthy on the army statement.

Yesterday's testimony at a closed session of the subcommittee came from the army employee who, McCarthy said, broke down and then admitted lying and agreed to tell what he knew about Rosenberg espionage.

40 Reported Injured in Navy Mishap

Explosion Called Worst Major Accident Since 48 Were Killed in '24; Inquiry on Monday

Boston, Oct. 17 (AP)—An explosion and flash fire turned below-deck compartments of the aircraft carrier Leyte into a death-dealing inferno yesterday.

At least 35 men died and 40 were injured, many critically.

The blast occurred forward on the port side of the big, 27,500-ton carrier that cost 90 million dollars when she was launched at Newport News, Va., in 1945. Unofficial reports said 1,400 officers and men were aboard when tragedy struck.

It was the worst navy explosion in peacetime since 48 men died aboard the battleship Mississippi off the California coast June 12, 1924.

The navy announced today the following board of inquiry will convene Monday at 9 a. m.: Rear Admiral Delbert S. Cornwall, senior officer, and Capt. Frank N. Turner and Leonard O. Fox. All are members of the Bureau of Aeronautics, Washington.

Meanwhile, two Massachusetts members of Congress urged an immediate investigation. Edith Nourse Rogers (R.) and Thomas J. Lane (D.) both sent messages to Washington. Mrs. Rogers requested that special attention be paid to sabotage.

The 856-foot-long Leyte, docked for overhaul after combat action off Korea in October-December, 1950, came here last December and was almost ready to go to sea again. She had been out for a trial run only Wednesday.

The cause of the blast was not known. The Leyte's skipper, Capt. Thomas A. Ahroon, of Norfolk, Va., in command of the ship less than three weeks, said the fire may have started on the deck immediately below the hangar deck.

Happened Fast

But he could not be sure, it happened so fast.

In his cabin when the blast shook the ship—"a dull rumble like a subway train going through"—Ahroon found the second deck cut off by smoke and climbed through an escape hatch to the hangar deck.

Damage control and firefighting parties already were in action, he said.

Capt. Ahroon timed the explosion at 3:15 p. m., and the first fire alarm was sounded a minute later. At 3:48 a second alarm was sent in. More than 50 Boston fire trucks and rescue companies raced to the shipyard.

Virtually every available ambulance in Boston—about 75—converged on the area as officials discovered the extent of the disaster. Civilian doctors and nurses joined navy hospital corpsmen from other vessels.

Hospitals rushed whole blood and plasma.

Taken to Hospitals

The injured were taken to City Hospital, to Carney Hospital in South Boston and to the Naval Hospital in Chelsea.

The navy, following regulations for notifying next of kin, withheld announcement of casualties' names until today. But of those taken to the two civilian hospitals, a high proportion were navy officers and enlisted men, with some civilian workmen included.

The fire was described by Dr. James W. Manary, superintendent of Boston City Hospital, as the city's worst disaster since the Cocoanut Grove nightclub fire

Witness Says Agent Asked $10,000 on Fix

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—A prosecution witness says a former internal revenue agent in the Albany area once told him that he owed the federal government "a whole lot more money but I can take care of it for you for $10,000."

The witness, Morris Spector, of Hudson, a principal in Spector Brothers Inc., testified yesterday in the federal trial of five former internal revenue agents in the Albany area.

Spector said he was visited in July, 1946, by Murray Talanker, of Albany, one of the defendants, and H. Harold Miller, former Catskill accountant. Miller is a government witness and has been named as a co-conspirator in the case.

Made Visit

Miller and Talanker made the visit after questions were raised about Spector's 1942-44 income tax returns, Spector testified.

Talanker, according to the witness, said that Spector owed the federal government "a whole lot more money but I can take care of it for you for $10,000."

Spector said he told Talanker there would have to be "a lot of crucifying" before he paid that amount and that if any money was due he wanted to pay the government. He said he told them "if you fellows push me" he would seek advice from two brothers-in-law who practice accounting and law.

Set His Figure at $1,500

He said they came down to $3,000 and that when he met Miller some weeks later in an Albany restaurant he told Miller

Three Po'keepsie Men Are Hurt at Middlehope

Track Licensees Will Get Question List From Probers

Must Report All Payments Including Fees Given So-Called Labor Trouble Fixers

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—Detailed questionnaires may be mailed today to the licensees of the state's eight harness racing tracks.

George Trosk, a member of three-men special commission to probe the harness racing industry, said yesterday the forms were ready for distribution.

The detailed questionnaires, with answers to be given under oath, are said to be designed to uncover hidden stock interests in any of the tracks and to provide a basis for personal interrogation.

In addition to a complete financial history, a record of all payments must be made—including fees to so-called labor trouble shooters.

The Moreland Act Commission was set up by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to turn the harness racing industry "upside down" in efforts to ferret out graft and corruption.

Former Judge Bruce Bromley is chairman of the federal commission. The third member is John F. Brosnan.

Troopers Say Only One Car in Accident; Injured Riders Can't Talk Yet

Three Poughkeepsie men were seriously injured in an automobile accident on Route 9W at Middlehope about 2:45 a. m. today.

State police identified the injured as:

Rolf Reinertsen, age unavailable of 71½ Union street, who suffered serious internal injuries.

Vincent Simpson, 28, no street address, who suffered a possible skull fracture.

Martin Habinowski, 38, of 93 Bellevue avenue, who received multiple body lacerations.

All were taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh where Reinertsen is on the critical list and the condition of the other two was reported as serious, troopers said.

Troopers of the Newburgh station said they believed that Habinowski was the driver of the car but they were unable to determine the cause of the accident because of the condition of the occupants. Only one car was involved and the investigation is being continued.

Channel Swimmer Back

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—Attractive endurance swimmer Florence Chadwick flew home today. As she landed at Idlewild Airport Miss Chadwick reiterated that such triumphs as her recent swimming of the English Channel, the Straits of Gibraltar, the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles were things of the past. Some exhibitions, yes—but no more "long grinds."

"I have the records now and anything else would be an anticlimax," she told newsmen. "I've double-crossed all the channels I'm going to try."

The Moreland Act Commission was set up by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to turn the harness racing industry "upside down" in efforts to ferret out graft and corruption.

Your Life and Mine

by
CLYDE HERBERT SNELL
A.O.T.

Newspaper editors are always dealing with three kinds of classes of material. There is the news story that must run while it is "hot." It is good only for this one day. Tomorrow it will have lost its punch. This kind of a story has news value only if it is printed now. Then there are the items—scads of them—which editors have to wade through that will never be run in the paper at all. These find their way to the little round file which society has christened "the waste basket." (The sheer fact that you are reading these lines is staunch evidence that this particular item has survived the grueling ordeal of the editor's critical eyes.)

But editors always have a third category for material—and it is this third class that has inspired this particular column. They call it A.O.T.—"Any old time." Now in the newspaper business that can be a pretty fertile file, for A.O.T. simply means that the stuff has a kind of timeless quality about it. It isn't enslaved by the calendar. It doesn't need the help of the momentary situation to put it across. The story would be good today provided there is room for it. If not, it will not grow stale if it is held over until tomorrow, or next week, or next month.

In this business of living, however, things are different. There is, for example, a kind of white-hot heat necessity about friendship. The person who thinks he has no time now to be friendly will one day wake up to the fact that he has fenced his own soul away from one of life's most precious assets. And that kindness which we intend to show—we had better be at that today. Tomorrow may be too late.

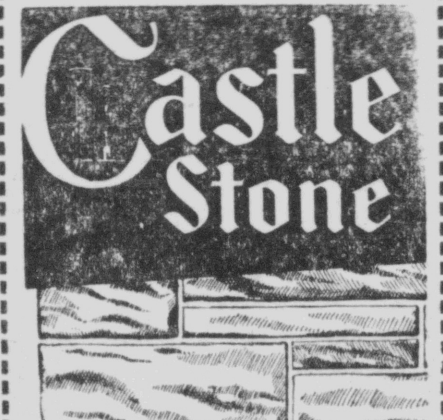

Because the longest life is brief I must be swift in keeping it. The little trysts with kindness. Before the time of sleeping.

Many a man has made the mistake of classifying the making of a life in the A.O.T. file until after he has made his fortune only to discover, sadly too late, that there is not any old time for the making of a life.

He always said he would retire. When he had made a million clear. And so he toiled into the dusk. From day to day, from year to year.

At last he put his ledgers up. And laid his stock reports aside. But when he started out to live he found he had already died.

THE PARIS

Can Improve Heating Unit Step by Step

Modernization of the house heating system can be done progressively, step by step, as finances permit, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau.

Frequently the replacement of outdated heating units can be tied in with the home decorating program, the bureau points out. Thus old-style radiators may be replaced by baseboards or convectors or newer-model radiators in all the rooms of a house or in a single room or in a group of rooms in connection with a decorating project.

If a room-by-room modernization program is proposed plans should be discussed with an experienced heating contractor before any of the work is undertaken. A heating contractor will not only be able to offer valuable advice on the type of heating equipment best suited to the house but also will be able to suggest how replacements in one or more rooms can be made without adversely affecting the heating of other rooms.

The step by step heating modernization program is also applicable to the boiler and burner. A hand-fired system may be modernized by the installation of an oil burner, gas burner, or stoker. This may be done independently of changes in the heat distributing units.

Linoleum Corners

Many home owners tolerate the petty nuisance of linoleum edges turning up at the point where it meets the doorway of the kitchen. This can be eliminated in old linoleum and prevented in laying new linoleum by the use of brass strips manufactured for this purpose.

Right Height for Sink

If a homemaker is of average height, the floor of the sink in her kitchen should not be less than three feet and two inches from the floor.

Give It Time

It is advisable to allow three or four days' drying time between exterior paint coats. Paint dries more rapidly in summer and fall, more slowly in spring and winter.

Sewer Pipe Under Floor

Cast iron is generally recommended for sewer pipes placed under basement floors and foundations because it resists breakage from external pressure.

Final Finish for Stains

Surface to which stains have been applied are usually finished with varnish or shellac. Two or more coats are used—the number depending upon the wear to which the surface will be subjected.

Largest Standard Pane

The largest standard-size pane of insulated glass available for picture windows measures 6x8 feet.

Charming Inside And Out

Cubage: . . . . . 25,000 ft.
Garage . . . . . 3,600 ft.
Dimensions . . . . . 63' x 30'

Thoroughly modern and unusually charming both inside and out, "The Paris," today's presentation from the Home of the Week Plan Service, contains seven good-sized rooms including two regular bedrooms plus an optional room which can be used as a den, bedroom or guest room.

Measuring 63'x30', "The Paris" will require at least a 90-foot lot. Cubage of the house proper is 63'x30'; cubage of the garage is 3,600 feet. The architectural charms of this house will be most effectively emphasized if "The Paris" is placed a good distance back from the road. Be sure to select a site where you can reap full scenic benefits from the beautiful large picture window in the front living room wall.

Plantings in front of the living room add to the exterior charm of "The Paris," as well as to the decorative appeal of the living room. Take into consideration both the picture window and the plantings in selecting the interior decoration of the living room as well as in planning the arrangement of the furniture.

Small, but well lighted and pleasant, the dining room is just across the central hallway from the kitchen so that serving meals in this room will be as convenient as possible. If you prefer a dining room of larger area than designated in the accompanying plan, you can make the adjoining porch smaller in area and utilize this space for the dining room.

In the kitchen itself, there is a breakfast nook which you'll make good use of for many family meals and between-meal snacks, as well as for breakfast. The rest of the kitchen is planned strictly as a work center with all appliances within easy reach of the busy homemaker.

Because of the generous amount of closet space provided throughout "The Paris," the family which lives in this attractively modern home should have no trouble keeping everything in its place. The basement will also provide extra storage area as will the garage; the latter is especially well suited for overhead storage of screens, etc.

All bedrooms, including the optional one, are well lighted and ventilated. The abundance of windows throughout "The Paris" helps to make this house both cheerful and pleasant.

For convenience the laundry is located on the first floor of "The Paris"; a first floor location for the laundry is high on the "must list" of most housewives. The only required installation in the basement is the heating plant, this should be installed under the living room.

Late Stock Needs Special Attention

Late-planted nursery stock requires special care even if the plants were still perfectly dormant at planting time. The sudden change from perfect storage conditions to active growing weather always is more or less of a shock. Some will react by being exasperatingly slow to put out new growth and others will respond with shoots and leaves so fast that the curtailed root system fails to keep up with the demand for water.

Maintenance of uniform soil moisture is of the greatest importance, but keeping the soil soggy for any length of time is likely to be more disastrous than letting the water supply fall somewhat below the requirement for optimum growth.

Mulching the surface soil several inches deep with leafmold, peat moss or sedge peat is of the greatest benefit. These not only preserve moisture but reduce frequent and sharp changes in the soil temperature. Shading of the tops against the brunt of the noon-day sun and drying winds also is of great benefit.

CLOGGED U. S. COURTROOMS

Not all the issues that affect the average citizen closely are headline catchers. For instance, there's the chronic matter of congestion in American courts.

Just look at the federal courts alone, which are of course only part of the story. The way to measure congestion is to plot the time it takes from the filing of a case in court until its final disposition.

This period, for civil cases, has lengthened to 12.4 months in 1953, from 12.1 months in 1952. But this is an average for the whole country, rural and urban. In the crowded cities the performance often is much worse.

In the districts covering Manhattan and Brooklyn in New York City, for example, the time involved in disposition of civil cases has this year reached an average of 47.3 months and 32.6 months, respectively.

If these statistics fail to stir you, imagine how you would feel waiting three or four years for the repair of wrongs done you, or how you would like accepting an unfair settlement simply because you could not afford the time and money involved in pressing a case to its long-delayed conclusion.

In 1952, every federal judge completed 213 civil cases, while 236 cases per judge were actually filed. By this year, each judge was finishing an average 233 cases, but the filings had jumped to an average of 261. That is the statistical proof that the courts cannot keep up.

The Judicial Conference of the U. S. says 31 new federal judges are needed without delay. Henry Chandler, Director of Administration of the United States Courts, is calling on Congress to act soon to relieve the jam-up.

Congress already has considered legislation to remedy the situation at least partially, but the fruits of its 1953 labors were lost in the haste to adjourn last August.

Both houses passed bills to create new judgeships, but the two measures differed somewhat and there was not time to compromise this disparity.

Certainly this legislation deserves a place on the "must" calendar when Congress reconvenes in January.

Justice must be more than simply having a theoretical access to the courts of law to right wrongs and remedy grievances. That access must be real, and to be real it must come to any citizen of this country within a reasonable length of time after he has suffered injustice.

More than one golfer along about now starts to lay plans for next season. The first step is to throw away the clubs.

FAMOUS NEGRO

The most famous Negro in American history is Dred Scott, central figure in a Supreme Court decision that was one of its most celebrated, certainly its most unpopular. The National Park Service announces a plan to restore and repair part of the old courthouse in St. Louis where Scott first sued for his freedom.

Dred Scott, descendant of slaves, had lived for some time in Minnesota, then a territory in which slavery was forbidden by the Missouri Compromise of 1820. When he returned to Missouri, a slave state, he was persuaded to sue on the ground that residence on free soil made him free. The case finally reached the Supreme Court and was decided in 1857.

Chief Justice Roger B. Taney's decision was that Negroes were not citizens, "that they had no rights which the white man was bound to respect," and that the Missouri Compromise, which barred slavery north of the 36th parallel, was unconstitutional. The decision gave the force of law to the extreme pro-slavery position and was violently resented in the North. It contributed largely to Lincoln's election. War came within four years of the decision.

In these great events Scott played an uncomprehending part. He lived his last few months as a janitor in St. Louis, but before his death he was freed by his master. Much history turned around his name.

NON-AGGRESSION PACTS

The theory supporting the existence of the United Nations is that all of its 60 members will not engage in aggression against each other, or even against nations which are not yet members of the United Nations. The theory is that war has been outlawed as an instrument for the settlement of international differences. This is the third attempt at this concept, the League of Nations and the Kellogg-Briand Pact being its forerunners.

Nevertheless, wars have occurred despite the existence of the United Nations, and sovereign states do make separate treaties and agreements. In the Korean War, members of the United Nations supported North Korea, an aggressor, while other members of the United Nations were neutral in a war declared by the United Nations. Actually, all the world is at this moment engaged in the preparation for war which some experts believe might break into a hydrogen bomb war as early as 1956. Therefore, the hope of some statesmen is that a non-aggression pact may be written between the United States and Soviet Russia which will either postpone or eliminate such a war.

There is, however, a long record of non-aggression pacts with Soviet Russia which have been violated by that country:

1. Treaty of Neutrality and Friendship with Turkey—1925—denounced 1945.
2. Treaty of Neutrality and Non-Aggression with Afghanistan—1926—violated 1940.
3. Treaty of Non-Aggression with Lithuania—1926—annexed 1940.
4. Treaty of Neutrality and Non-Aggression with Persia—1927—violated 1945.
5. Pact of Non-Aggression with Latvia—1932—annexed 1940.
6. Pact of Non-Aggression with Poland—1932—attacked 1939.
7. Pact of Non-Aggression with Estonia—1932—annexed 1940.
8. Pact of Non-Aggression with Finland—1932—denounced 1939.
9. Pact of Non-Aggression with China—1937—conquered Manchuria 1945.
10. Pact of Non-Aggression with Yugoslavia—1941—withdrawn diplomatic recognition one month later.

These are a few friendship and non-aggression pacts selected from a long list of agreements and treaties violated by Soviet Russia.

The Russian definition of aggression is particularly satisfactory because it includes political aggression. These are the words:

"Each of the Contracting Parties undertakes to abstain from all kinds of aggression against the other and will not, on the territory under its own occupation, take any such steps which may cause political or military injury to the other contracting Government. In particular, each of the Contracting Parties undertakes not to join any other state or states in any political or military alliance or union directed against the other Contracting Party, and similarly it will not join in any boycott or financial and economic blockades directed against the other."

Further, the definition includes this statement: "The Contracting Parties will not permit any groups or individuals in their own territories to establish or to prosecute activities detrimental to the other Contracting Parties; to take steps for the subversion of the established Government of the other Contracting state; to take any action against the integrity of the territory of the other Contracting Party."

Nevertheless, Russia has violated treaties and agreements containing these or similar words. In 1933, by an exchange of correspondence between Roosevelt and Litvinov, the United States agreed to recognize Soviet Russia. One of the stipulations was that neither country would employ political parties or groups, even of natives, to upset the government of the other. One year later, in 1934, Soviet Russia organized the Harold Ware Cell in Washington to infiltrate the American Government up to the second level of authority. At least four espionage cells were stationed in this country. The atom bomb was stolen. There is no knowing what else has been stolen. These acts were violations of the Roosevelt-Litvinov agreement.

Soviet Russia has violated clauses in agreements and treaties and the general provisions of international law in every country in the world by propaganda, by infiltration, by Communist Party activity, by subversion, by the corruption of natives, and by direct and indirect war. No example exists of such an anarchistic attitude toward contractual relations similar to this. The Russians cannot be trusted. Therefore, a non-aggression pact is a useless document. Actually, the Charter of the United Nations covers any condition that a non-aggression pact would.

CONGESTIVE HEART FAILURE

Today, when we hear or read about heart disease, most of us have in mind coronary thrombosis or heart stroke, likely because so many young and middle-aged men and women suffer these attacks and have to rest from their work for several weeks after an attack.

Not many years ago when an individual was suffering with heart disease it meant that the heart was beginning to fail and that sooner or later, more often sooner, the heart would stop from sheer exhaustion. In those days a heart murmur was considered practically a death sentence because it was argued that a heart murmur was due to a leaking valve in the heart, the heart would have to pump blood over again because of this leak, and this extra pumping would gradually wear down the strength of the heart. Today, a failing heart is still a serious matter but the heart murmur, unless other symptoms are present, is not such a serious matter, thousands of men with heart murmurs having fought in World Wars 1 and 2 without having any trouble with their heart.

During the past years, physicians have learned that it is the amount of sodium in the blood which holds too much water in the blood and tissues that puts too much work on the heart, that is the common cause of heart failure. One of the first symptoms of heart failure is thus swelling of the feet from deposit of water; shortness of breath is another early symptom of heart failure.

It is in this type of heart failure that physicians lessen the amount of physical activity and amount of salt (sodium) in foods. In the "Medical Clinics of North America," Drs. Irvin B. Hansenson, Raymond E. Weston, Jacob Grossman and Louis Leiter, New York City, state that when chronic heart failure is associated with infection, and not enough digitalis used in patients on a low salt diet, the tissues may hold increased amounts of water even when the salt intake is greatly decreased. They suggest that heart congestion and heart failure be treated by cutting down on physical activity and promoting the renewal of water from tissues by an adequate dosage of digitalis (not over- or under-dosage).

The cutting down of salt in and on food and the use of salt substitutes should be prescribed. Only about 1 teaspoon of table salt should be permitted daily and in food.

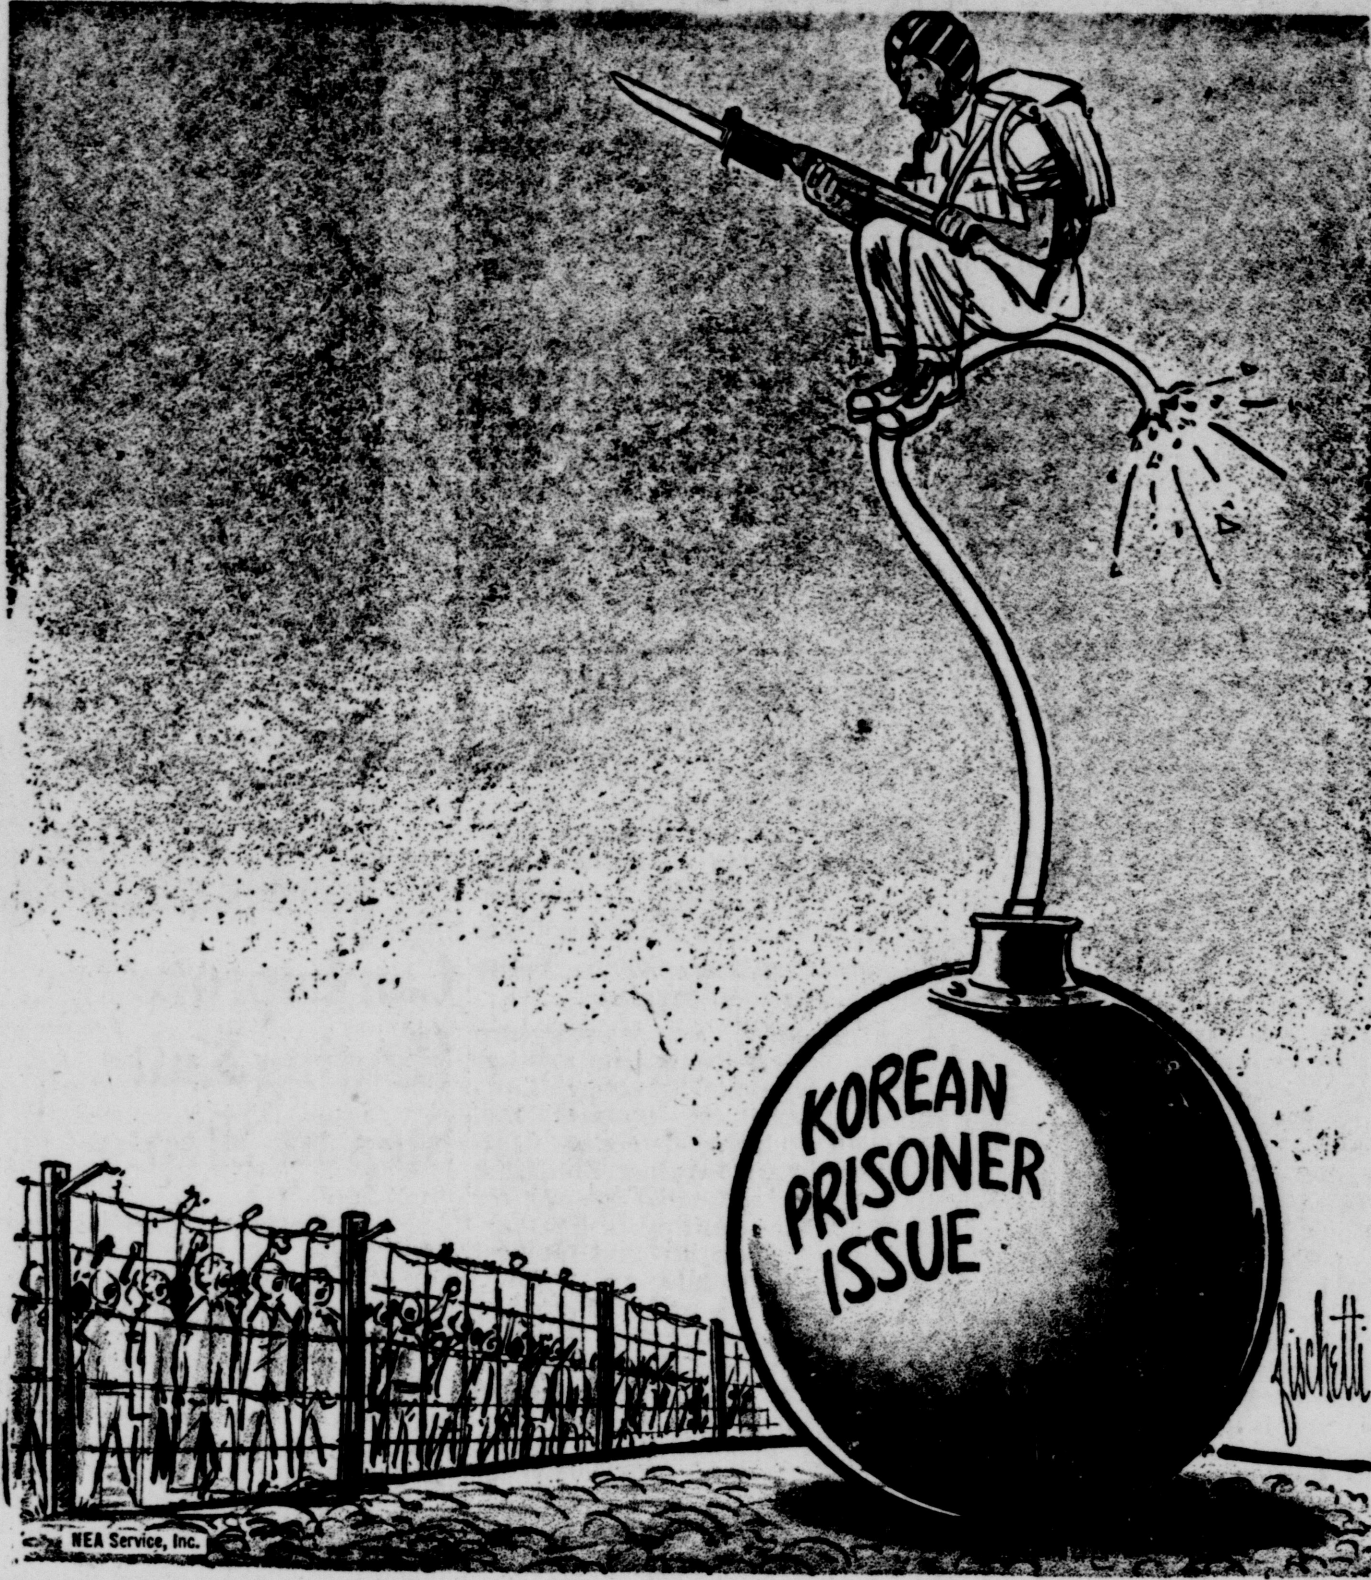

The use of drugs to remove water from the body, cutting down on table salt and foods rich in sodium, adequate dosage of digitalis, and lessening physical activity, is the routine treatment for heart congestion and failure.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington, (NEA) — Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lewis L. Strauss has a story about scientific research which he says actually happened at a small college in the west some years ago where the president had to double as professor of physics and chemistry.

As Strauss tells it: "An eastern bishop paid his annual inspection to the primitive campus and was put up at the president's home. The president had his small faculty in to supper to give them the benefit of the bishop's wisdom and experience."

"After supper, the bishop said the millennium could not be very far off since among other signs, everything about nature had been discovered, all inventions that would be made had been made, and more of the same."

"When the bishop finished, he turned to the president for concurrence. The president reluctantly said he couldn't agree. He felt that the next 50 years would produce many more inventions."

"The bishop was outraged. 'Name just one thing,' he demanded. 'Well,' said the president, 'I do think that at any rate within the next 50 years men will be able to fly like birds.'"

"What," exclaimed the bishop, "flight is reserved solely for the angels."

"The bishop's name," Strauss says, "was Wright. He had two small sons, Orville and Wilbur."

Strike Looms Monday

Spring Valley, Oct. 17 (AP)—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen announced late yesterday a strike would begin at 4 a. m. Monday by the drivers of Rockland Coaches, Inc., and its allied lines. The strike would halt the main bus service for 50,000 commuters to the New York City metropolitan area from Rockland County, N. Y., and northern Bergen county, N. J. The strike decision followed more than three weeks of slowdown by the drivers in a dispute with the company over working conditions. Wages are not involved in the dispute.

Freighter Leaves Port

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—Rivalry between the American Federation of Labor and its castoff International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) last night forced the removal of a freighter from Brooklyn to Port Newark, N. The ILA line vessel, Hawaiian Banker, carrying thousands of tons of canned pineapple, made the move after a stevedoring concern official tried in vain to get the two unions to agree to share the unloading of the boat.

A reporter went right to the point and asked if Japan is interested in obtaining more U. S. dollar aid. The translator translated. There followed a somewhat lengthy discussion in Japanese, after which the translator straightened up in full dignity and said:

"Every country in the world wants more U. S. dollars. My country is no exception."

OW, I'm Stagnated

Government employees of the Foreign Operations Administration who have been notified that they will lose their jobs under Administrator Harold E. Stassen's reorganization and reduction in force plans have a new word to describe their prospective unemployment. They say they've been "Stagnated."

Hot Speed Record

There has been some hot back-sitting bickering between air force and navy over the navy's capture of the world low-level flying speed record of 753.4 miles per hour.

Air force first heard of the navy's planned attempt to break the old record through National Aeronautics Association, the civilian organization which does the official clocking. Air force officials tried to get the navy to delay. They even went to Donald Douglas, builder of the navy's F-4D Skyraider which was used in the test. Air Force Secretary Harold Talbot was brought into the act. What the air force wanted was to have its F-100 Super Sabrejet make the first attempt to set a new record. But none of its protests stopped the navy.

Naval Bureau of Aeronautics officials are now laughing up their sleeves. The temperature at the California desert base was 98.5 when the speed record was broken.

The hotter it is, the better it is for a speed record test because the expanded air offers less resistance. As the weather is now getting cooler, the air force may not have as favorable conditions for a speed test till next summer.

Hope to Fill Posts
Though the Eisenhower administration has been in office nine months, no official announcement has yet been made on appointments to 13 top diplomatic posts. Truman-appointed ambassadors and ministers are still serving in Bolivia, Honduras, Hungary, Iraq, Libya, New Zealand, Palestine, Philippine Islands and Sweden. There are no U. S. ambassadors in Colombia, Costa Rica and Saudi Arabia—Yemen, and there will be a vacancy in Paraguay after Oct. 31.

An effort is being made to fill these posts before Congress reconvenes in January, so that the Senate can immediately confirm all appointments.

Danger Signs on Alcoholic Route; Effect on Women

Because alcoholism is officially recognized as the nation's fourth major public health problem, and since its effects on the victims, families, and communities are so widespread and serious, The Freeman presents an educational series on this disrupting affliction as a community public health service. This is the third article in the series to be run weekly.

This series is not a temperance crusade, nor is it any attempt to invade anyone's private life, it is simply a factual, unbiased attempt to present the truth as known on this grave medical and social problem which merits the attention and understanding of everyone—non-drinkers as well as drinkers.

Prevention begins with understanding. Perhaps you can help someone in need of help.

By AN ALCOHOLIC

(By An Alcoholic)

It is the quality of one's drinking, not so much the quantity, which is important in identifying alcoholics and potential alcoholics. The quality of one's drinking indicates how far he has traveled along the alcoholic route. The farther one goes, the harder it is to halt the steady downward plunge. All alcoholics arrive at the same unhappy destination by routes of varying lengths, some getting there quickly while others may take 10 to 15 years to acquire the alcoholic label.

Women Severely Affected

It has been said that the woman who becomes an alcoholic is more emotionally disturbed than a man who becomes such. Basically, a woman's emotional structure is more complex than a man's hence, it is readily understandable why she suffers so severely as a victim. Alcohol acts as fuel for the fire of emotional upsets.

From the case histories of recovered alcoholics much has been learned to aid us in detecting potential victims of alcoholism. There are certain alcoholic trademarks which crop up in a drinker's behavior which can be used as guides in determining the degree of loss of control over alcohol. The following drinking habits are to be considered as patterns of progressive alcoholism. They are the red lights on the alcoholic journey.

Somewhere along the line of so-called moderate, social drinking, drunkenness may occur from time to time. As the occasions of intoxication become more frequent, the greater the danger of alcohol controlling the individual instead of the individual controlling alcohol. These instances of loss of control are significant symptoms of trouble ahead for the drinker. Drunkenness can never be considered as social drinking.

It is well to bear in mind that the motives behind excessive drinking vary from person to person and cover every imaginable excuse in the book. Sad people will drink to become happy; poor people will drink to forget that they are poor; insignificant people will indulge to become popular. In all cases, the objectives of drinking are countless and, yet, it is important to consider them when confronted with a drinking problem.

'False Feeling of Mastery'
When a person is drinking for some other reason than the drink itself, there is danger of that person using alcohol to provide a false feeling of mastery. This, in turn, promotes a growing need and dependency on alcohol. Eventually, alcohol might become an absolute necessity and be the most important factor in that person's life. Whatever the drinking objective, drunkenness provides only temporary, counterfeit satisfaction, and the net result is greater confusion and crisis.

Sneaking drinks, gulping drinks, big shot exhibitions by otherwise quiet, insecure people, getting drunk every time one takes a drink, and blackouts when one does not remember where he has been or what he has said or done—are all indications of growing drinking troubles.

The need for a drink in the morning is, indeed, one of the glaring signs of dependence on alcohol. This, usually, is followed by a growing urge for drinks throughout the day, resulting in serious interference with one's routine duties, work and responsibilities.

As the compulsion to drink increases, drinkers may start off on benders lasting anywhere from a few days to weeks. For such people, alcohol in any form or quantity is poison. They totter on the brink of a madman's exile where the bottle is their only hope for relief, but never release. These people are in desperate need of help, in spite of their customary denials. They will resist attempts to aid them, resent any criticisms of their drinking record, lie about it, and try to dismiss the seriousness of the situation confronting them.

Blame the Other Person

By this time, solitary drinking has undoubtedly become a practice. The victim withdraws from his family and friends, through feeling of guilt and remorse. He may even hate himself for drinking, yet, the blame for his condition will be placed anywhere other than on himself. Conflicts rage within-day and night—so, he drinks to forget, but never forgets to drink.

When it is discovered that a drinker is hiding and protecting his supply of liquor, it can be assumed that he is ensnared in the alcoholic trap.

Most problem drinkers try to change their drinking habits at one time or another, particularly when some outside pressure finds its mark. They may "go on the wagon," or try some form of controlled drinking such as using a limited quantity of beer or light wine. However, whatever the plan, it is ordinarily one of the drinker's own design and of borus intention. It represents a final, desperate measure to find a way to continue drinking without risking any of the disasters of the past. This is alcoholic folly. The alcoholic can never become a moderate, controlled drinker.

As the victim's condition grows worse, he will show a marked disregard for moral and ethical codes recognized in his society. He will conveniently forget that his rights end where his neighbor's begin. His promises will come a dime a dozen in abundance, but without quality. The whole structure of his personality falls apart.

His Moods Change
Even when not drinking, the victim's moods swing violently from one extreme to the other. He is unpredictable, unreliable and irresponsible in his relations with others. He finally becomes exiled to a terrifying loneliness that demands relief through more and more drinking.

Resentments crowd the lives of all alcoholics. When they can't get what they want when they want it, it is usually a quick retreat to the bottle. But, the trouble is not so much the contents of the bottle as it is fundamentally within themselves. The bottle is their futile weapon against the inner conflicts of mind.

The alcoholic is a dreamer and a perfectionist. He has lofty ambitions and feels that he is entitled to realize them—but, with little or no effort on his part. Failure is something he cannot endure, and he switches from never-ending sober worry to a drinking outlook of "to hell with it!"

The alcoholic reaches his low ebb when his condition becomes so bad that drinking itself offers no relief to his miserable existence. Though bankrupt in every conceivable respect, he or she is not beyond salvage, even if one may wonder if there is anything left to salvage.

Somewhere along this devastating plunge to human oblivion there are points of rescue if those close to the drinker will exercise intelligent guidance and understanding. It is always better to prevent than treat.

CLOGGED U. S. COURTROOMS

Not all the issues that affect the average citizen closely are headline catchers. For instance, there's the chronic matter of congestion in American courts.

Just look at the federal courts alone, which are of course only part of the story. The way to measure congestion is to plot the time it takes from the filing of a case in court until its final disposition.

This period, for civil cases, has lengthened to 12.4 months in 1953, from 12.1 months in 1952. But this is an average for the whole country, rural and urban. In the crowded cities the performance often is much worse.

In the districts covering Manhattan and Brooklyn in New York City, for example, the time involved in disposition of civil cases has this year reached an average of 47.3 months and 32.6 months, respectively.

If these statistics fail to stir you, imagine how you would feel waiting three or four years for the repair of wrongs done you, or how you would like accepting an unfair settlement simply because you could not afford the time and money involved in pressing a case to its long-delayed conclusion.

In 1952, every federal judge completed 213 civil cases, while 236 cases per judge were actually filed. By this year, each judge was finishing an average 233 cases, but the filings had jumped to an average of 261. That is the statistical proof that the courts cannot keep up.

The Judicial Conference of the U. S. says 31 new federal judges are needed without delay. Henry Chandler, Director of Administration of the United States Courts, is calling on Congress to act soon to relieve the jam-up.

Congress already has considered legislation to remedy the situation at least partially, but the fruits of its 1953 labors were lost in the haste to adjourn last August.

Both houses passed bills to create new judgeships, but the two measures differed somewhat and there was not time to compromise this disparity.

Certainly this legislation deserves a place on the "must" calendar when Congress reconvenes in January.

Justice must be more than simply having a theoretical access to the courts of law to right wrongs and remedy grievances. That access must be real, and to be real it must come to any citizen of this country within a reasonable length of time after he has suffered injustice.

More than one golfer along about now starts to lay plans for next season. The first step is to throw away the clubs.

FAMOUS NEGRO

The most famous Negro in American history is Dred Scott, central figure in a Supreme Court decision that was one of its most celebrated, certainly its most unpopular. The National Park Service announces a plan to restore and repair part of the old courthouse in St. Louis where Scott first sued for his freedom.

Dred Scott, descendant of slaves, had lived for some time in Minnesota, then a territory in which slavery was forbidden by the Missouri Compromise of 1820. When he returned to Missouri, a slave state, he was persuaded to sue on the ground that residence on free soil made him free. The case finally reached the Supreme Court and was decided in 1857.

Chief Justice Roger B. Taney's decision was that Negroes were not citizens, "that they had no rights which the white man was bound to respect," and that the Missouri Compromise, which barred slavery north of the 36th parallel, was unconstitutional. The decision gave the the force of law to the extreme pro-slavery position and was violently resented in the North. It contributed largely to Lincoln's election. War came within four years of the decision.

In these great events Scott played an uncomprehending part. He lived his last few months as a janitor in St. Louis, but before his death he was freed by his master. Much history turned around his name.

NON-AGGRESSION FACTS

The theory supporting the existence of the United Nations is that all of its 60 members will not engage in aggression against each other, or even against nations which are not yet members of the United Nations. The theory is that war has been outlawed as an instrument for the settlement of international differences. This is the third attempt at this concept, the League of Nations and the Kellogg-Briand Pact being its forerunners.

Nevertheless, wars have occurred despite the existence of the United Nations, and sovereign states do make separate treaties and agreements. In the Korean War, members of the United Nations supported North Korea, an aggressor, while other members of the United Nations were neutral in a war declared by the United Nations. Actually, all the world is at this moment engaged in the preparation for war which some experts believe might break into a hydrogen bomb war as early as 1956. Therefore, the hope of some statesmen is that a non-aggression pact may be written between the United States and Soviet Russia which will either postpone or eliminate such a war.

There is, however, a long record of non-aggression pacts with Soviet Russia which have been violated by that country.

1. Treaty of Neutrality and Friendship with Turkey, 1925—denounced 1945.

2. Treaty of Neutrality and Non-Aggression with Afghanistan—1926—violated 1940.

3. Treaty of Non-Aggression with Lithuania—1926—annexed 1940.

4. Treaty of Neutrality and Non-Aggression with Persia—1927—violated 1945.

5. Pact of Non-Aggression with Latvia—1932—annexed 1940.

6. Pact of Non-Aggression with Poland—1932—attacked 1939.

7. Pact of Non-Aggression with Estonia—1932—annexed 1940.

8. Pact of Non-Aggression with Finland—1932—denounced 1939.

9. Pact of Non-Aggression with China—1937—conquered Manchuria 1945.

10. Pact of Non-Aggression with Yugoslavia—1941—withdraw diplomatic recognition one month later.

These are a few friendship and non-aggression pacts selected from a long list of agreements and treaties violated by Soviet Russia.

The Russian definition of aggression is particularly satisfactory because it includes political aggression. These are the words:

"Each of the Contracting Parties undertakes to abstain from all kinds of aggression against the other and will not, on the territory under its own occupation, take any such steps which may cause political or military injury to the other Contracting Government. In particular, each of the Contracting Parties undertakes not to join any other state or states in any political or military alliance or union directed against the other Contracting Party, and similarly it will not join in any boycott or financial and economic blockades directed against the other."

Further, the definition includes this statement: "The Contracting Parties will not permit any groups or individuals in their own territories to engage in or to prosecute activities detrimental to the other Contracting Party; to take steps for the subversion of the established Government of the other Contracting state; to take any action against the integrity of the territory of the other Contracting Party."

Nevertheless, Russia has violated treaties and agreements containing these or similar words. In 1933, by an exchange of correspondence between Roosevelt and Litvinov, the United States agreed to recognize Soviet Russia. One of the stipulations was that neither country would employ political parties or groups, even of natives, to upset the government of the other. One year later, in 1934, Soviet Russia organized the Harold Ware Cell in Washington to infiltrate the American Government up to the second level of authority. At least four espionage cells were stationed in this country. The atom bomb was stolen. There is no knowing what else has been stolen. All these acts were violations of the Roosevelt-Litvinov agreement.

Soviet Russia has violated clauses in agreements and treaties and the general provisions of international law in every country in the world by propaganda, by infiltration, by Communist Party activity, by subversion, by the corruption of natives, by direct and indirect war. No example exists of such an anarchistic attitude toward contractual relations similar to this. The Russians cannot be trusted. Therefore, a non-aggression pact is a useless document. Actually, the Charter of the United Nations covers any condition that a non-aggression pact would.

CONGESTIVE HEART FAILURE

Today, when we hear or read about heart disease, most of us have in mind coronary thrombosis or heart stroke, likely because so many young and middle-aged men and women suffer these attacks and have to rest from their work for several weeks after an attack.

Not many years ago when an individual was suffering with heart disease it meant that the heart was beginning to fail and that sooner or later, more often sooner, the heart would stop from sheer exhaustion. In those days a heart murmur was considered practically a death sentence because it was argued that a heart murmur was due to a leaking valve in the heart, the heart would have to pump blood over again because of this leak, and this extra pumping would gradually wear down the strength of the heart. Today, a failing heart is still a serious matter but the heart murmur, unless other symptoms are present, is not such a serious matter, thousands of men with heart murmurs having fought in World Wars 1 and 2 without having any trouble with their heart.

During the past years, physicians have learned that it is the amount of sodium in the blood and tissues that holds too much water in the blood and tissues that puts too much work on the heart, that is the common cause of heart failure. One of the first symptoms of heart failure is thus swelling of the feet from deposit of water; shortness of breath is another early symptom of heart failure.

It is in this type of heart failure that physicians lessen the amount of physical activity and amount of salt (sodium) in foods. In the "Medical Clinics of North America," Drs. Irvin B. Hanenson, Raymond E. Weston, Jacob Grossman and Louis Leiter, New York City, state that when chronic heart failure is associated with infection, and not enough digitalis used in patients on a low salt diet, the tissues may hold increased amounts of water even when the salt intake is greatly decreased. They suggest that heart congestion and heart failure be treated by cutting down on physical activity and promoting the removal of water from tissues by an adequate dosage of digitalis (not over- or under-dosage).

The cutting down of salt in and on food and the use of salt substitutes should be prescribed. Only about 1 teaspoon of table salt should be permitted daily on and in food.

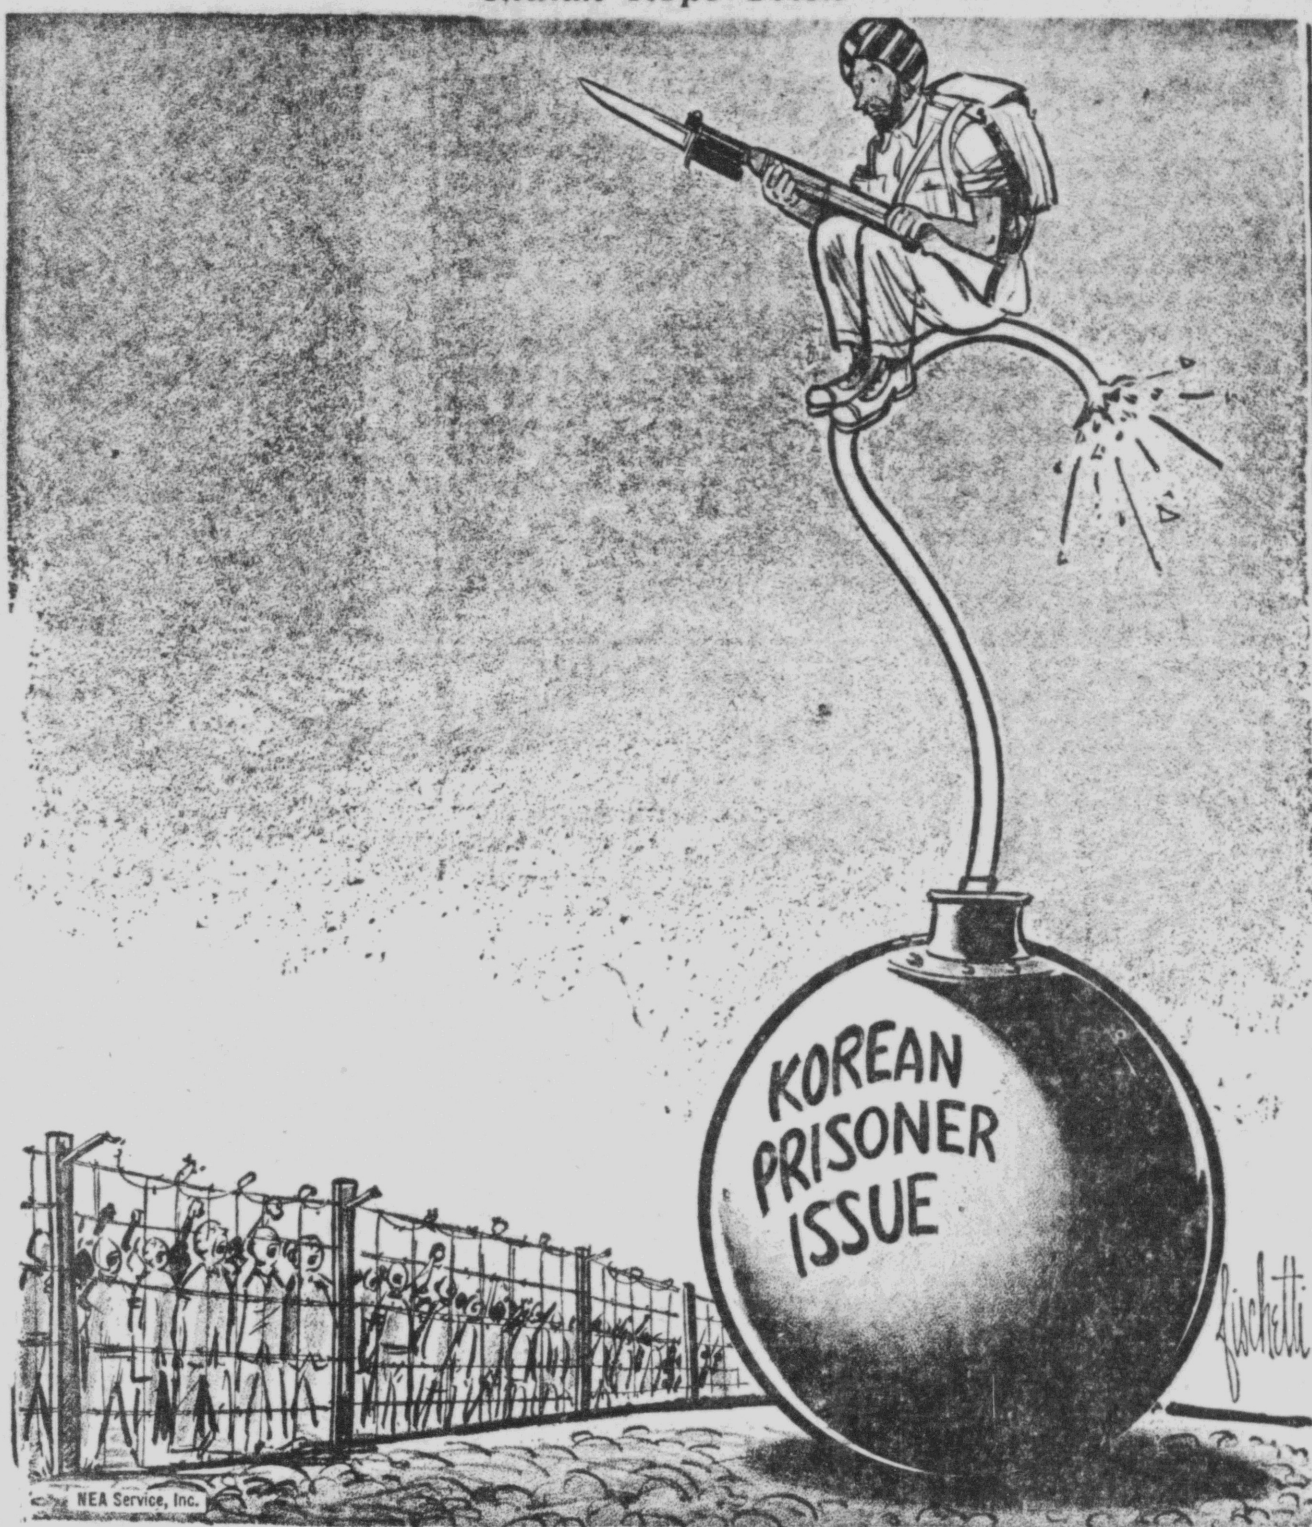

The use of drugs to remove water from the body, cutting down on table salt and foods rich in sodium, adequate dosage of digitalis, and lessening physical activity, is the routine treatment for heart congestion and failure.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington, (NEA) — Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lewis L. Strauss has a story about scientific research which he says actually happened at a small college in the west some years ago where the president had to double as professor of physics and chemistry.

As Strauss tells it: "An eastern bishop paid his annual inspection to the primitive campus and was put up at the president's home. The president had his small faculty in to supper in give them the benefit of the bishop's wisdom and experience."

"After supper, the bishop said the millennium could not be very far off since among other signs, everything about nature had been discovered, all inventions that would be made had been made, and more of the same."

"When the bishop finished, he turned to the president for concurrence. The president reluctantly said he couldn't agree. He felt that the next 50 years would produce many more inventions."

"The bishop was outraged. 'Name just one thing,' he demanded."

"Well," said the president, "I do think that at any rate within the next 50 years men will be able to fly like birds."

"What," exclaimed the bishop, "flight is reserved solely for the angels."

"The bishop's name," Strauss says, "was Wright. He had two small sons, Orville and Wilbur."

A reporter went right to the point and asked if Japan is interested in obtaining more U. S. dollar aid. The translator translated. There followed a somewhat lengthy discussion in Japanese, after which the translator straightened up in full dignity and said:

Hot Speed Record

There has been some hot backstage bickering between air force and navy over the navy's capture of the world low-level flying speed record of 753.4 miles per hour.

Air force first heard of the navy's planned attempt to break the old record through National Aeronautics Association, the civilian organization which does the official clocking. Air force officials tried to get the navy to delay. They even went to Donald Douglas, builder of the navy's F-4D Skyhawk which was used in the test.

Harold Talbot was brought into the act. What the air force wanted was to have its F-100 Super Sabrejet make the first attempt to set a new record. But none of its protests stopped the navy.

Naval Bureau of Aeronautics officials are now laughing up their sleeves. The temperature at the California desert base was 98.5 when the speed record was broken.

The hotter it is, the better it is for a speed record test 'because the expanded air offers less resistance. As the weather is now getting cooler, the air force may not have as favorable conditions for a speed test till next summer.

Hope to Fill Posts

Though the Eisenhower administration has been in office nine months, no official announcement has yet been made on appointments to 13 top diplomatic posts.

Truman-appointed ambassadors and ministers are still serving in Bolivia, Honduras, Hungary, Iraq, Libya, New Zealand, Palestine, Philippine Islands and Sweden. There are no U. S. ambassadors in Colombia, Costa Rica and Saudi Arabia—Yemen, and there will be a vacancy in Paraguay after Oct. 31.

An effort is being made to fill these posts before Congress reconvenes in January, so that the Senate can immediately confirm all appointments.

Danger Signs on Alcoholic Route; Effect on Women

Because alcoholism is officially recognized as the nation's fourth major public health problem, and since its effects on the victims, families, and communities are so widespread and serious, The Freeman presents an educational series on this disrupting affliction as a community public health service. This is the third article in the series to be run weekly.

This series is not a temperance crusade, nor is it any attempt to invade anyone's private life. It is simply a factual, unbiased attempt to present the truth as known on this grave medical and social problem which merits the attention and understanding of everyone—non-drinkers as well as drinkers.

Prevention begins with understanding. Perhaps you can help someone in need of help.

By AN ALCOHOLIC

(By An Alcoholic)

It is the quality of one's drinking, not so much the quantity, which is important in identifying alcoholics and potential alcoholics. The quality of one's drinking indicates how far he has traveled along the alcoholic route. The farther one goes, the harder it is to halt the steady downward plunge.

All alcoholics arrive at the same unhappy destination by routes of varied lengths, some getting there quickly while others may take 10 to 15 years to acquire the alcoholic label.

Women Severely Affected

It has been said that the woman who becomes an alcoholic is more emotionally disturbed than a man who becomes such. Basically, a woman's emotional structure is more complex than a man's hence, it is readily understandable why she suffers so severely as a victim. Alcohol acts as fuel for the fire of emotional upsets.

From the case histories of recovered alcoholics much has been learned to aid us in detecting potential victims of alcoholism. There are certain alcoholic trademarks which crop up in a drinker's behavior which can be used as guides in determining the degree of loss of control over alcohol. The following drinking habits are to be considered as patterns of progressive alcoholism. They are the lights on the alcoholic journey.

Somewhere along the line of so-called moderate, social drinking, drunkenness may occur from time to time. As the occasions of intoxication become more frequent, the greater the danger of alcohol controlling the individual instead of the individual controlling alcohol. These instances of loss of control are significant symptoms of trouble ahead for the drinker. Drunkenness can never be considered as social drinking.

It is well to bear in mind that the motives behind excessive drinking vary from person to person and cover every imaginable excuse in the book. Sad people will drink to become happy; poor people will drink to forget that they are poor; insignificant people will indulge to become popular, and so on. The objectives in drinking are countless, and yet, it is important to consider them when confronted with a drinking problem.

'False Feeling of Mastery'

When a person is drinking for some other reason than the drink itself, there is danger of that person using alcohol to provide a false feeling of mastery. This, in turn, promotes a growing need and dependency on alcohol. Eventually, alcohol might become an absolute necessity and be the most important factor in that person's life. Whatever the drinking objective, drunkenness provides only temporary, counterfeit satisfaction, and the net result is greater confusion and crisis.

Sneaking drinks, gulping drinks, big-shot exhibitions by otherwise quiet, insecure people; getting drunk every time one takes a drink, and blackouts when one does not remember where he has been or what he has said or done—are all indications of growing drinking troubles.

The need for a drink in the morning is, indeed, one of the glaring signs of dependence on alcohol. This, usually, is followed by a growing urge for drinks throughout the day, resulting in serious interference with one's routine duties, work and responsibilities.

As the compulsion to drink increases, drinkers may start off on benders lasting anywhere from a few days to weeks. For such people, alcohol in any form or quantity is poison. They totter on the brink of a maddening exile where the bottle is their only hope for relief, but never release. These people are in desperate need of help, in spite of their customary denials. They will resist attempts to aid them, resent any criticisms of their drinking record, lie about it, and try to dismiss the seriousness of the situation confronting them.

Blame the Other Person

By this time, solitary drinking has undoubtedly become a practice. The victim withdraws from his family and friends through feeling of guilt and remorse. He may even have himself for drinking, yet, the blame for his condition will be placed anywhere other than on himself. Conflicts rage within—day and night—so, he drinks to forget, but never forgets to drink.

When it is discovered that a drinker is hiding and protecting his supply of liquor, it can be assumed that he is ensnared in the alcoholic trap.

Most problem drinkers try to change their drinking habits at one time or another, particularly when some outside pressure finds its mark. They may "go on the wagon," or try some form of controlled drinking such as using a limited quantity of beer or light wine. However, whatever the plan, it is ordinarily one of the drinker's own design and of boric intention. It represents a final, desperate measure to find a way to continue drinking without risking any of the disasters of the past. This is alcoholic folly. The alcoholic can never become a moderate, controlled drinker.

As the victim's condition grows worse, he will show a marked disregard for moral and ethical codes recognized by society. He will conveniently forget that his rights end where his neighbor's begin. His actions will become a dozen in abundance, but without quality. The whole structure of his personality falls apart.

His Moods Change

Even when not drinking, the victim's moods swing violently from one extreme to the other. He is unpredictable, unreliable and irresponsible in his relations with others. He finally becomes exiled to a terrifying loneliness that demands relief through more and more drinking.

Resentments crowd the lives of all alcoholics. When they can't get what they want when they want it, it is usually a quick retreat to the bottle. But, the trouble is not so much the contents of the bottle as it is fundamentally within themselves. The bottle is their futile weapon against the inner conflicts of mind.

The alcoholic is a dreamer and a perfectionist. He has lofty ambitions and feels that he is entitled to realize them—but, with little or no effort on his part. Failure is something he cannot endure, and he switches from never-ending glory glory to a drinking outlook of "to hell with it!"

The alcoholic reaches his low ebb when his condition becomes so bad that drinking itself offers no relief to his miserable existence. Though bankrupt in every conceivable respect, he or she is not beyond salvage, even if one may wonder if there is anything left to salvage.

Somewhere along this devastating plunge to human oblivion there are points of rescue if those close to the drinker will exercise intelligent guidance and understanding. It is always better to prevent than treat.

Victim Gives Alarm
But as Sargini started to walk away from the building at 154 W. 31st street, Manhattan, Vaneth ran out and shouted, "Stop thief." Sargini raced through heavy evening hour pedestrian traffic with the jeweler in hot pursuit.

Patrolman Joseph Haberkorn joined the case, shouting "Halt or I'll shoot." He fired one shot into the air, then held off because of the crowds.

Sargini threw his gun into a gutter as he ran.

Two blocks from the jewelry shop, Patrolmen John J. Murphy and Charles Schroeder saw the chase draw near as they emerged from a subway. They pounced on Sargini and quickly subdued him. After being booked for assault, robbery and illegally carrying a gun, Sargini moaned:

"I wish the policeman's bullet had killed me. Now my whole family will be disgraced. This may kill my wife and my father-in-law."

calculated. 2. Practical means of allaying Yugoslav anger over Trieste in view of the ministers' reported agreement last night to stand by the British-American announcement that Italy would be given Zone A of that strategic territory.

Work on Soviet Reply
The ministers also must put finishing touches on drafts of British, French and American notes to the Soviet Union calling for a Big Four foreign ministers' meeting Nov. 9 at Lugano, Switzerland, to discuss a final Austrian Rhodesia and German unification. These drafts say a five-power parley with Communist China sitting in—as proposed by Russia last month—could await a Korean settlement.

A non-aggression pact offer—to guarantee Russia's security in return for a green light on reunification—looking to free elections throughout Germany—could be made in these notes.

Postpone Decision
The Big Three discussed the proposal yesterday, but reportedly postponed a decision when West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer objected to the offer being made at this time. Adenauer expressed fear that it would delay further French ratification of the proposed six-nation European Defense Community (EDC) treaty. The EDC provides for limited rearmament of Germany.

Although the idea of such a pact—first broached by Britain's Prime Minister Churchill—has gained some favor with Dulles and Bidault, recent dispatches from Moscow said western diplomats there were skeptical about its reception by the Kremlin.

These diplomats were said to doubt that the Russians would accept even the anticipated bid for a four-power conference on Germany, asserting that the Soviets do not appear particularly anxious to talk with the west now on any level.

The Highland Council of Church Women will meet Tuesday, Oct. 20, at 8 p. m. at the home of the late Mrs. John F. Wadlin. Final plans will be made for the local observance of World Community Day Friday, Nov. 6, at 2 p. m. at Holy Trinity Episcopal Church. Mrs. Mildred Percy is chairman and she and her committee from church and other groups have organized collection and sending on needed articles to be sent abroad on this day. Several bags of these have already been sent through World Service.

More than 40 persons attended the family night supper in the Presbyterian Church hall Sunday night. At the close of the meal Mrs. Victor Salvatore told of their visits to schools and churches established by the Presbyterian Church in Alaska. Dr. Salvatore then took up their trip by plane from Idlewild Airport to St. Paul, Minn., where they joined the major number of the party and by train to Rainier National Park, Seattle, where they went by boat and visited several cities in Alaska. The return was made through Canada with stops at Lake Louise and Banff. The travelers were loud in their praise of those in charge and in the many acquaintances made among nearly 200 persons who made up the tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherburne Sears and daughters and Mrs. Thomas Sears had a three-day trip to Lake George, Crown Point, Burlington, Vt. with night stops in Richmond and Wilmington.

Another Blow for Reds
Pannunjon, Oct. 17 (AP)—Bitter squabbles flared between allied and Communist officers today as all but 9 of 430 Chinese war prisoners defiantly turned their backs on Red attempts to woo them back to communism. It was a second stinging blow to the Reds, who persuaded only 10 of 500 to return in the first day of the explanation Thursday. They will be given explanations tomorrow Sunday under Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission (NNRC) rules.

Will Bar Newsmen
Indianapolis, Oct. 17 (AP)—Newsmen won't be admitted to a speech by Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey today despite the famed sex researcher's lifting of restrictions he had imposed earlier. The Central Neuropsychiatric Association last Tuesday decreed that the meeting would be limited to association members. Dr. E. Vernon Hahn, arrangements chairman, said the group's meetings always are closed for consideration of technical and scientific matters. "It is not a case of excluding the press," Hahn said, "but rather of continuing the policy of limiting the meetings to the members."

Work on Soviet Reply
The ministers also must put finishing touches on drafts of British, French and American notes to the Soviet Union calling for a Big Four foreign ministers' meeting Nov. 9 at Lugano, Switzerland, to discuss a final Austrian settlement and German unification. These drafts saw a five-power meeting last summer in China sitting in—as proposed by Russia last month—could await a Korean settlement.

A non-aggression pact offer—to guarantee Russia's security in return for a green light on reunification—looking to free elections throughout Germany—could be made in these notes.

Postpone Decision
The Big Three discussed the proposal yesterday but reportedly postponed a decision when West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer objected to the offer being made at this time. Adenauer expressed fear that it would delay further French ratification of the proposed six-nation European Defense Community (EDC) treaty. The EDC provides for limited rearmament of Germany.

Although the idea of such a pact first broached by Britain's Prime Minister Churchill—has gained some favor with Dulles and Bidault, recent dispatches from Moscow said western diplomats there were skeptical about its reception by the Kremlin.

These diplomats were said to doubt that the Russians would accept even the anticipated bid for a four-power conference on Germany. Asserting that the Soviets do not appear particularly anxious to talk with the west now on any level.

Says Medical Bills
Sorgini said he leveled a 25 caliber Mauser automatic and Steven Vanetch, 50, handed over the cash.

Victim Gives Alarm
But as Sorgini started to walk away from the building at 154 W. 31st street, Manhattan, Vanetch ran out and shouted, "Stop thief." Sorgini raced through heavy evening hour pedestrian traffic with the jeweler in hot pursuit.

Patrolman Joseph Haberker heard the case, shouting "Halt or I'll shoot." He fired one shot into the air, then held off because of the crowds.

Sorgini threw his gun into a gutter as he ran.

Two blocks from the jewelry shop, Patrolman John J. Murphy and Charles Schroeder saw the chase draw near as they emerged from a subway. They pounced on Sorgini and quickly subdued him.

After being booked for assault, robbery and illegally carrying a gun, Sorgini moaned:

"I wish the policeman's bullet had killed me. Now my whole family will be disgraced. This may kill my wife and my father-in-law."

The harness raceway scandals stemmed from the murder last August of Thomas F. Lewis, labor leader whose union had a closed contract with the Yonkers Trotting Track.

Both the Yonkers track in Westchester county and Roosevelt Raceway in Nassau county are being probed by authorities in these areas.

Pending mailing of the questionnaires, there was no indication last night that the new special commission would subpoena additional witnesses for appearances today.

Shokan

Shokan, Oct. 17—Mrs. Alfred Nagel of Lake Katrine is spending a few days with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hawley Nagel, in the Back Brook section of Boiceville. The Nagels bought the one-time Fred Stevens farm of Oscar Czysz last June and are occupying the property as a year round home.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Deuel of Brooklyn are vacationing in the reservoir country and have been calling on their friends in the twin villages.

Charles Jackson of Ashokan is now serving with the U. S. Navy at Lyauti, a naval base in French Morocco. Mrs. Jackson, who before her marriage last summer was Carol Barringer of Samsonville, is residing in Kingston. Charles, a KHS and Moran School alumnus, was employed in civilian life with the Cornell Steamboat Company and the Western Union Poughkeepsie office.

Fred Reiner, Olive Bridge farmer who died Sunday, has been welfare officer for several years and was well known throughout the Town of Olive.

The rains of early last week proved of little benefit to the water supply of this section. A number of dug wells are still dry and the brooks are barely functioning at this writing. Islands are beginning to appear in the east basin of the Ashokan—a pretty sure indication of another water scarcity ahead for New York.

Fred Botha, Tongore carpenter, has the new T. Fredholm house addition at enclosed.

The condition of Virginia Rossman was reported Thursday to remain about the same at Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York. She has been employed by a savings and loan association in Kingston.

Judge and Mrs. Roger Loughran of Hurley called on friends in the village Sunday evening while en route home from an outing in Delaware county.

George Jackson, youngest of three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jackson, Ashokan, is temporarily stationed at Fort Dix, N. J., following induction into military service last week. George, who was awarded high scholastic honors as a KHS student, has been employed in Poughkeepsie the past two years. The young man's father served more than 30 years in the U. S. Navy previous to his retirement and subsequent removal to Shokan about 10 years ago.

Robert Peck Jr., and family are now making their home in Kingston.

A. Benson of the Woodland Valley bungalow colony was a caller here Saturday. He has one of the most interesting and valuable collections of old and rare tools in Ulster county.

Floyd Terwilliger, native of the old village of Shokan, is ill at his home on the Onteora Trail, Mrs. Terwilliger, the former Sarah Lasher, who is also ill, was taken to a hospital last week.

Sunday, October 18, marks the 54th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Van Sreenburgh, both of whom were born and brought up in the reservoir country. They were married by the Rev. Lewis F. Piper, pastor of the Shokan Methodist Church in 1899.

Edward Weiderspiel spent the weekend at his mountain road, the one time David Furness farm. The property which adjoins a recently sold Morton Hendrickson place on the south, has been on the market for some time.

Callers in the village center Wednesday included Fred Roosa of the Kyserville area.

Dr. McCarthy and wife of New Jersey are spending a few days with their friend, Mrs. Denis T. Lynch of the cross mountain road.

Jordan Appeals for Aid
Jerusalem, Jordan Sector, Oct. 17 (AP)—Jordan appealed to Iraq for troops, planes and arms today and issued orders to its army to shoot on sight any Israeli troops crossing the tense border. ## Dewey Denies . . .

the United States." Giving no further clue to the person's identity, Wagner said the individual's "every word and act" was considered important throughout the nation.

Political controversy involving Fay began two weeks ago, when Dewey released a list of 88 persons who visited Fay, former international vice president of the AFL Operating Engineers.

The list included acting Lt. Gov. Arthur H. Wicks, a Republican. As state Senate majority leader, Wicks is next in line for the lieutenant governorship following the resignation of Frank C. Moore.

Has TV, Radio Time
Wicks, summoned to the governor's office for an explanation of his Sing Sing visits, said he consulted Fay in connection with labor problems in his district. Wicks refused to resign and is taking his case to the people on radio and television tomorrow.

His talk will be televised at 1:30 p. m. over WNET, New York; WRGB; Schenectady; WBN-TV, Buffalo; WKTV, Utica and WHAM, Rochester.

The Mutual Broadcasting System, including Station WKNY in Kingston, will carry Wicks' speech from 5:30 until 6 p. m. WETC, Hudson and WYOS, Liberty, also will broadcast the talk at this hour.

Radio re-broadcasts are scheduled for Sunday at 7:30 p. m. over WKIP, Poughkeepsie and WGNV, Newburgh, at 4:30 p. m. Monday.

Calls Wicks 'Scapegoat'
Wagner termed Wicks nothing more than a "scapegoat" and said full airing of the Fay case would expose Dewey as "a cold calculating politician" who had "engaged in the shabbiest cover-up in the history of politics."

Among those who allegedly sought executive clemency for Fay is Paul L. Troast, GOP candidate for governor of New Jersey.

In Albany last Monday, Dewey said that names of persons asking or opposing clemency for a prisoner never were made public under any circumstances. The governor said this policy protected honest persons who put themselves on record concerning dangerous criminals.

Rep. Charles J. Kersten (R-Wis.) yesterday issued a statement saying he interested himself in a parole for Fay only to the extent of a new hearing based "on the record."

Also yesterday, Richard J. Gray, president of the AFL Building and Construction Trades Department, told newsmen he visited Fay twice in prison. Gray, sailing for a meeting of the International Labor Organization, said he still thinks Fay should be pardoned.

Both Gray and Kersten said they became interested in Fay's case after being contacted by Father William Gordon of New York, now dead.

Fay, 61, is serving a 7½ to 15-year term that began in 1948. He once has been denied parole. After the furor over his stream of visitors, Dewey had Fay transferred from Sing Sing to Clinton Prison at Dannemora, N. Y., near the Canadian border. Dannemora is known among convicts as "Silberia."

"I'm giving you only $1,500 and not a cent more. If you don't take that I will report it to the government. I don't like the whole thing."

On cross-examination he conceded Talanker had said nothing about a false audit and said he was assessed for approximately $28,000 unreported income.

Two other witnesses were David B. Alei, general manager of the H. and H. Transportation Company, of Hudson, and David Holmes, a principal in that firm. Holmes said Miller told him "You are in a mess with internal revenue, there may be some way of fixing it up. I think we can settle for $5,000."

Counted Steps
Holmes said the incident took place early in 1947 and that Miller drove him to Albany to an address which he said he visited last week and found to be 73 Winthrop street, formerly identified as Talanker's home. He said he remembered he counted 13 steps going into the house on his original trip in case anything ever came out of it.

He said he paid the money there but could not identify the man who took it.

High School's Second Half Surge Routs Middletown, 28-0

Gene Massa Scores All Points for Maroon Team To Tooheys

Middletown High was geared to stop Charlie Johnson last night at municipal stadium and they did a pretty good job of it.

But while the Blue and White were concentrating on the fleet halfback, Gene Massa literally murdered them with one of the finest individual performances in recent KHS football history.

It added up to a convincing 28-0 triumph, Kingston's fourth straight of the 1953 campaign and its second conference win. Middletown suffered its third loss in four starts.

Harried and embarrassed by Middletown's eye-catching but ineffectual spot and jump passes of Artie Myers, the Maroons exploded with a typical second half performance that rocked the stadium.

Scores 28 Points

Massa accounted for all of Kingston's 28 points with four touchdowns and four straight placements. Seldom has a Kingston back ever commanded the spotlight so completely as Massa did last night.

It was one of Gene's long gainers that broke the stalemate after Middletown had battled the slugging Maroons to a standstill in the first half.

First he booted 33 yards through the middle to climax a 68-yard jaunt by Kingston. He kicked the placement for a 7-0 lead. A few minutes later, Roger Billings called a fourth down pass and completed to John Turk who crashed to the Middletown 7. The Middle defenders, looking for a punt, were sucked in and Turk grabbed the pigskin all by his lonesome. Ray Sedelmyer, the Middle workhorse, overhauled him on the 7. Ray Roux smashed to the 2 and Massa bulldozed over for his second TD and added a placement to make it 14-0.

Goes 47 With Punt

The Middles were to see more of Massa in the third quarter. Next he grabbed a punt on the Middle 47, picked up a cordon of blockers and moved into the northwest corner for his third TD. By now the placement seemed almost automatic and it was 21-0.

A fumble recovery by Roger Billings on the Middletown 22 set up Massa's fourth score. Jay Souers and Billings picked up a first down to the 13. On the next play, Massa slammed off tackle to become one of the few players ever to score four TDs in one game for Kingston High. The crowd gave the gallant young man a tremendous cheer.

With Marcello lost and Artie Myers' tricky passes causing no great concern to the Kingston defense, the Middles showed virtually nothing in the way of a second half offense.

Middles Outclassed

The overall statistics gave them only 11 yards net and 89 yards on 10 completions in 25 pass attempts. Kingston ground out 215 yards rushing and 37 more over-head.

Massa had a 7-plus average for the night. Hampered by a bad cold all week, Johnson lacked his usual speed and was unable to turn the Middletown flanks. A TD pass from Billings to Turk was nullified in the first period when Kingston was detected using the hands illegally. Middletown advanced to the Kingston 15 where a series of passes were batted down.

In losing the game, the Middles also may have lost the services of Marcello, their best back, for the remainder of the season. An examination in the dressing room at halftime revealed that the speedy halfback suffered a shoulder separation.

Proving its impregnability for the fourth straight game, the Kingston line played a tremendous game. Led by Bill Engle, a slashing tackle, last night, the Maroon forwards smothered everything the Blues had in the way of a running attack. The tackling was hard, clean and vicious and the Middles took a terrific physical pounding.

Shoemaker Sets New World Record With 392 Wins

Albany, Calif., Oct. 17 (AP)—Soft-spoken Willie Shoemaker is the new world's champion jockey with his 392nd winner of the year.

The Texas-born turf terror hit the winner's circle aboard The Hoop in the third race at Golden Gate Fields yesterday for the single victory he needed to better the 390-win mark made last year by Tony Despitito.

Obviously delighted and spurred by the wild applause of 8,000 fans, Wee Willie came back in the eighth race with his 392nd winner, Carry Message.

Shoemaker, a 22-year-old from El Paso and Los Angeles, stands 4 feet 11 inches in his riding boots. He weighs 95½ pounds.

Perez Stops Cam In Eighth Round

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—Lulu Perez, flashy 20-year-old Brooklyn featherweight with 23 straight victories, is headed for a November 27 Madison Square Garden shot with Dave Gallardo.

Gallardo, a more experienced scrapper, gave Perez a rough time September 4, before a cut made him a TKO victim.

Matchmaker Billy Brown had to juggle his Garden dates after he lost November 13th to Chicago for the Kid Gavilan-Johnny Bratton title bout.

Perez knocked out Jay Cam of Boston last night in 48 seconds of the eighth round in a nationally televised bout at St. Nicholas Arena. A long right hand to the jaw did the trick. Perez weighed 127½, Cam 128½.

Although Lulu, a 4 to 1 favorite, took care of Cam as expected, he was careless on occasions, taking unnecessary punches. A dancing boxer with exceptionally quick hands, Perez moved in and out to pin-point the onrushing Cam with his clever left.

Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club plans its first pheasant shoot of the season for club members Sunday between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Members are urged to obey all club regulations and carefully observe restricted areas which are designated by red posters. The bag limit is one bird.

The club preserve will be closed to everyone during the time pheasant days and all violations will be subject to arrest.

Bob Brizez will be club house custodian this season and will prepare the refreshments and be in charge of bird checking.

Red Wing Rookies Are Real Heroes

Two rookies—Dutch Reibel and goalie Dave Gathum—have indicated they'll play an important role in the Detroit Red Wings drive for another National Hockey League title.

Reibel, who already had six assists this season, scored twice in the third period last night to give the Wings a 2-2 tie with the Chicago Blackhawks. And Gathum, filling in for the injured Terry Sawchuk, ran his string of scoreless periods to five before yielding two goals early in the third period.

After two scoreless chapters, Doc Couture put the Hawks ahead at 21 seconds of the third period. Thirty-five seconds later Ray Bill Gadsby rapped in a long one and it looked as if the Hawks were going to win their first game of the season. But Reibel scored at 6:27 while Gadsby was in the penalty box and tallied the tying goal at 16:36 on a pass from veteran Gordy Howe.

Knicks-Royals For Siena Fund

The offense-minded New York Knickerbockers, with pro basketball's most famous fast break style of play, will present a veteran squad of players against the Rochester Royals Tuesday night at the Albany Armory.

The contest is being played as a benefit for the Siena College youth fund.

The Eastern division champions of the NBA and finalist in the last three title playoffs, stress speed and have been referred to as the "reindeer" of the hardwood.

Sparkplug in the fast break, perhaps the game's greatest ball handler, is Dick McGuire. McGuire threads the needle with passes so swift, deceptive and accurate that it's difficult for the average fan to follow them.

Chuck Dessen is back in the bushes after one of the most fantastic managerial turnovers in major league history.

Charlie Dessen in Oakland while Walter O'Malley searches for a one-year genius on the banks of the Gowanus is a bizarre picture that only a Salvador Dali or Pablo Picasso could paint. It's that ridiculous.

But pride and policy are potent instruments. How would you feel if you were Chuck Dessen and one day you picked up a metropolitan gazette and read that your ever-loving interborough rival, Leo the Lip, had just been awarded a 2-year contract for keeping the New York Giants within 30 lengths of your championship Dodgers.

You have just won your second successive National League pennant and you dropped a third on a story book homer by Bobby Thomson to these same hated Giants.

As Chuck Dessen you would be understandably proud of your achievements with the Dodgers. After all there can be no real achievement without pride and purpose.

Dessen knew all along that it was Brooklyn's policy to sign managers to one-term contracts. But didn't he have a right to think, as any mortal might be tempted, that maybe O'Malley would make an exception for a guy who had accomplished something no other Brooklyn Dodger mgr. could do—win two straight pennants?

The little wife thought so and Charlie did, too. So they put their heads together and drafted a letter to Walter O'Malley. Its terms are now baseball history. What they sought for Charlie Dessen was a measure of security in repayment for services well rendered. But O'Malley said no, club policy doesn't permit it.

But Dessen is a strange character to whom success always has been accomplished with difficulty. He never won anything easily. But this time he thought he had a case, if that is the real reason for his departure. There are many who honestly believe there is a hidden, untold story that some day will come to light.

So Charlie Dessen is back in the bushes. And does Walter O'Malley think he can shake high grade managers off trees. Seems so. But Dessen will be back, maybe next year.

Flotsam and Jetsam:

October, with its breath taking beauty and panorama, has been a golfer's paradise. Woodstock Country Club had its biggest play of the season Sunday, Oct. 11. Traffic exceeded play for the 4th of July and Labor Day weekends, traditional top spots of the year. Randy Turpin isn't the worst fighter ever sent to America by Great Britain, but he's easily the most unpopular. Wednesday night the American sports writers, almost to a man, will be rooting for Bobo Olson to stanch the man who once whipped Sugar Ray Robinson. Attorney Louis G. Bruhn gets a chance to renew acquaintance with his old baseball coach when J. H. Wittner of Union College conducts the basketball clinic Tuesday night at the Kate Walton Field House. Frank "Bing" Van Etten of Kingston is a member of the executive board of the Central Hudson Valley district board of approved officials which is host to the Philip Van Valin of Windham, a senior at State University Institute at Cobleskill, was recently elected co-captain of the "Aggie" cross country team. Walter S. Van Wagenen says that the Woodstock Varsity will have to play Saturday night ball this season in order to field a representative squad.

Real Players Back Again—Grange:
Red Grange says he is enjoying the college football campaign this fall for the first time in a decade.

"Now we have some real football players," the Illinois great asserted. "They're playing the game again with individuals instead of platoons. Some of those specialists of the past couple of years weren't even athletes, let alone football players."

"Smaller colleges are also benefiting greatly. Fewer players are needed, making it easier for the smaller institutions to field a team. A boy who can't make the grade in a major college likely will go to a smaller school and become a hero. Last year he probably would have stayed at the bigger school and specialized in kicking extra points."

Reese Willing
Reese, veteran shortstop and captain of the Dodgers, is regarded as the top candidate to lead the club next year. If chosen, he will be a playing manager.

Although O'Malley insisted he had nobody in mind yet, he said the next Brooklyn manager would have to be active either on the coaching lines or in the field. The Dodgers head said he already had received several applications "from some good men" but he did not expect to name the new manager for several weeks.

Reese, reached at his home in Louisville, Ky., said he had not been contacted by anybody in the Dodger organization but hinted he would welcome an opportunity to manage the Dodgers.

"I always said I wouldn't want to manage while I still had some good playing years left," Reese said. "But now, with Dessen gone, it's something to think about."

Brooklyn, Oct. 17 (AP)—Charles Dessen, who gave up a prize major league job with a pennant winner to manage a minor league team, predicted today that Pee Wee Reese will succeed him as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"I think Pee Wee is the logical man for the job," said Dessen who forsook the Dodgers yesterday for the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League. Dessen split with the Dodgers in a dispute over the length of a contract.

"Of course, I don't know what they'll do," Dessen added, "but Reese ought to make them a good manager. If he gets the job, I wish him all the luck in the world and I'll be rooting hard for him. I think the Dodgers will win the pennant again next year especially with Don Newcombe back from the army."

Newcombe, a 20-game winner with the Dodgers in 1951, is scheduled to be discharged from the service in February.

The 6-year-old gelding, piloted by Hugh Bell, was clocked in 2:03.1 and paid $4.40 for $2. Scotch Spencer was second and Egan Grattan third.

Bossio on TV
Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Bill Bossio of Pittsburgh was a slight favorite to punch out a victory over Washington's Gene Smith in a return featherweight bout tonight. The 9 p. m. EST 10-pound boxing match is scheduled for nationwide telecast (ABC) except for a local blackout.

Jim Doughan, center on Yale's football team, grew up in the shadows of the Yale Bowl. His home is New Haven, Conn.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

BY JOE STETSON
(Dog Editor)

"Too much dog."
My friend was no waster of words and I knew pretty well how his mind worked so I didn't argue the point but it placed the question squarely before me. Perhaps the 125-pound dog (small as Great Danes go today) was too big.

In considering size, there is an economic factor which should always be given priority. Some families cannot fit the needs of a large dog into the family budget. Danes head the list in cost of feeding and are strong contenders for the veterinary bill honors. Irish wolfhounds are close second, followed by the Saint Bernard. Newfoundlanders, Great Pyrenees, Mastiff and so on down the line.

Granting that the economic factor is important, let's look at size purely in terms of practical

High School's Second Half Surge Routs Middletown, 28-0

Gene Massa Scores All Points for Maroon Team

Middletown High was geared to stop Charlie Johnson last night at Municipal stadium and they did a pretty good job of it.

But while the Blue and White were concentrating on the fleet halfback, Gene Massa literally murdered them with one of the finest individual performances in recent KHS football history.

It added up to a convincing 28-0 triumph, Kingston's fourth straight of the 1953 campaign and its second conference win. Middletown suffered its third loss in four starts.

Harried and embarrassed by Middletown's eye-catching but ineffectual spot and jump passes of Artie Myers, the Maroons exploded with a typical second half performance that rocked the stadium.

Scores 28 Points

Massa accounted for all of Kingston's 28 points with four touchdowns and four straight placements. Seldom has a Kingston back ever commanded the spotlight so completely as Massa did last night.

It was one of Gene's long gainers that broke the stalemate after Middletown had battled the slugging Maroons to a standstill in the first half. First he booted 33 yards through the middle to climax a 68-yard jaunt by Kingston. He kicked the placement for a 7-0 lead. A few minutes later, Roger Billings called a fourth down pass and completed to John Turk who crashed to the Middletown 7. The Middle defenders, looking for a punt, were sucked in and Turk grabbed the piskin all by his lonesome. Ray Sedelmyer, the Middle workhorse, overhauled him on the 7. Ray Roux smashed to the 2 and Massa bulldozed over for his second TD and added a placement to make it 14-0.

Goes 47 With Punt

The Middies were to see more of Massa in the third quarter. Next he grabbed a punt on the Middle 47, picked up a cordon of blockers and moved into the northwest corner for his third TD. By now the placement seemed almost automatic and it was 21-0.

A fumble recovery by Roger Billings on the Middletown 23 set up Massa's fourth score. Jay Souers and Billings picked up a first down to the 13. On the next play, Massa slammed off tackle to become one of the few players ever to score four TDs in one game for Kingston High. The crowd gave the gallant young man a tremendous cheer.

With Marcello lost and Artie Myers' tricky passes causing no great concern to the Kingston defense, the Middies showed virtually nothing in the way of a second half offense.

Middies Outclassed

The overall statistics gave them only 11 yards net and 89 yards on 10 completions in 25 pass attempts. Kingston ground out 215 yards rushing and 37 more over-head.

Massa had a 7-plus average for the night. Hampered by a bad cold all week, Johnson lacked his usual speed and was unable to turn the Middletown flanks. A TD pass from Billings to Turk was nullified in the first period when Kingston was deterred using the hands illegally. Middletown advanced to the Kingston 15 where a series of passes were batted down.

In losing the game, the Middies also may have lost the services of Marcello, their best back, for the remainder of the season. An examination in the dressing room at halftime revealed that the speedy halfback suffered a shoulder separation.

Proving its impregnability for the fourth straight game, the Kingston line played a tremendous game. Led by Bill Engle, a slashing tackle, last night, the Maroon forwards smothered everything the Blues had in the way of a running attack. The tackling was hard, clean and vicious and the Middies took a terrific physical pounding.

Shoemaker Sets New World Record With 392 Wins

Albany, Calif., Oct. 17 (AP)—Soft-spoken Willie Shoemaker is the new world's champion jockey with his 392nd winner of the year.

The Texas-born turf terror hit the winner's circle aboard The Hoop in the third race at Golden Gate Fields yesterday for the single victory he needed to better the 390-win mark made last year by Tony Despirito.

Obviously delighted and spurred by the wild applause of 8,000 fans, Wes Willie came back in the eighth race with his 392nd winner, Carry Message.

Shoemaker, a 22-year-old from El Paso and Los Angeles, stands 4 feet 11 inches in his riding boots. He weighs 95½ pounds.

New World Mark For Torch Key

Yonkers, Oct. 17 (AP)—Torch Key, owned by William J. Alberg of Glen Head, established a world trotting record on a half-mile track for three-year old geldings last night when he stepped a mile in 2:04.3 at Yonkers Raceway's grand circuit meeting.

The old mark of 2:05 was made by Royal Windsor in 1945 at Rutland, Vt.

Warren Dennis brought Torch Key up fast in the stretch to beat Bertha Rosecroft by a length in a $4,500 Class A event. Edward Song was third. In winning his seventh race in 20 starts, Torch Key paid $8.10 for $2.

The feature, a $6,000 free-for-all pace, went to Cleo Am Young's Ferman Hanover of Timonville, S. C. in the fastest time of the fall meeting.

The 6-year-old gelding, piloted by Hugh Bell, was clocked in 2:03.1 and paid $4.40 for $2. Scotch Spoor was second and Egan Grattan third.

Bossio on TV

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Bill Bossio of Pittsburgh was a slight favorite to punch out a victory over Washington's Gene Smith in a return featherweight bout tonight. The 9 p. m. EST 10-pound boxing match is scheduled for nationwide telecast (ABC) except for a local blackout.

Jim Doughan, center on Yale's football team, grew up in the shadows of the Yale Bowl. His home is New Haven, Conn.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO

Freeman Sports Editor

Chuck Dressen is back in the bushes after one of the most fantastic managerial turnovers in major league history.

Charlie Dressen in Oakland while Walter O'Malley searches for a one-year genius on the banks of the Gowanus is a bizarre picture that only a Salvador Dali or Pablo Picasso could paint. It's that ridiculous.

But pride and policy are potent instruments.

How would you feel if you were Chuck Dressen and one day you picked up a metropolitan gazette and read that your ever-loving interborough rival, Leo the Lip, had just been awarded a 2-year contract for keeping the New York Giants within 30 lengths of your championship Dodgers.

You have just won your second successive National League pennant and you dropped a third on a story book homer by Bobby Thomson to these same hated Giants.

As Chuck Dressen you would be understandably proud of your achievements with the Dodgers. After all there can be no real achievement without pride and purpose.

Dressen knew all along that it was Brooklyn's policy to sign managers to one-term contracts. But didn't he have a right to think, as any mortal might be tempted, that maybe O'Malley would make an exception for a guy who had accomplished something no other Brooklyn Dodger mgr. could do—win two straight pennants?

The little wife thought so and Charlie did, too. So they put their heads together and drafted a letter to Walter O'Malley. Its terms are now baseball history. What they sought for Charlie Dressen was a measure of security in repayment for services well rendered. But O'Malley said no, club policy doesn't permit it.

But Dressen is a strange character to whom success always has been accomplished with difficulty. He never won anything easily. But this time he thought he had a case, if that is the real reason for his departure. There are many who honestly believe there is a hidden, untold story that some day will come to light.

So Charlie Dressen is back in the bushes. And does Walter O'Malley think he can shake high grade managers off trees. Seems so. But Dressen will be back, maybe next year.

Flotsam and Jetsam:

October, with its breath taking beauty and panorama, has been a golfer's paradise. Woodstock Country Club had its biggest play of the season Sunday, Oct. 11. Traffic exceeded play for the 4th of July and Labor Day weekends, traditional top spots of the year. Randy Turpin isn't the worst fighter ever sent to America by Great Britain, but he's easily the most unpopular. Wednesday night the American sports writers, almost to a man, will be rooting for Bobo Olson to starch the man who once whipped Sugar Ray Robinson. Attorney Louis G. Bruhn gets a chance to renew acquaintance with his old baseball coach when J. H. Wittner of Union College conducts the basketball clinic Tuesday night at the Kate Walton Field House. Frank "Blind" Van Etten of Kingston is a member of the executive board of the Central Hudson Valley district board of approved officials which is host to the clinic. Philip Van Valin of Windham, a senior at State University Institute at Cobleskill, was recently elected co-captain of the "Aggie" cross country team. Walter S. Van Wagonen says that the Woodstock Country will have to play Saturday night this season in order to field a representative squad.

Real Players Back Again—Grange:

Red Grange says he is enjoying the college football campaign this fall for the first time in a decade.

"Now we have some real football players," the Illinois great asserted. "They're playing the game again with individuals instead of platoons. Some of those specialists of the past couple of years weren't even athletes, let alone football players."

"Smaller colleges are also benefiting greatly. Fewer players are needed, making it easier for the smaller institutions to field a team. A boy who can't make the grade in a major college likely will go to a smaller school and become a hero. Last year he probably would have stayed at the bigger school and specialized in kicking extra points."

Dressen Sees Pee Wee Reese As Next Brooklyn Manager

Brooklyn, Oct. 17 (AP)—Charles

Dressen, who gave up a prize major league job with a pennant winner to manage a minor league team, predicted today that Pee Wee Reese will succeed him as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"I think Pee Wee is the logical man for the job," said Dressen, who forsook the Dodgers yesterday for the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League. Dressen split with the Dodgers in a dispute over the length of a contract.

"Of course, I don't know what they'll do," Dressen added, "but Reese ought to make them a good manager. If he gets the job, I wish him all the luck in the world and I'll be rooting hard for him. I think the Dodgers will win the pennant again next year especially with Don Newcombe back from the army."

Newcombe, a 20-game winner with the Dodgers in 1951, is scheduled to be discharged from the service in February.

Reese Willing

Reese, veteran shortstop and captain of the Dodgers, is regarded as the top candidate to lead the club next year. If chosen, he will be a playing manager.

Although O'Malley insisted he had nobody in mind yet, he said he wished Reese would come back to be active either on the coaching lines or in the field. The Dodgers head said he already had received several applications "from some good men" but he did not expect to name the new manager for several weeks.

Reese, reached at his home in Louisville, Ky., said he had not been contacted by anybody in the Dodger organization, but hinted he would welcome an opportunity to manage the Dodgers.

"I always said I wouldn't want to manage while I still had some good playing years left," Reese said. "But now, with Dressen gone, it's something to think about."

Paltz Will Begin 18 Adult Classes

New Paltz, Oct. 17—Booklets announcing the Adult Education Program at New Paltz High School were mailed this week to every home under the jurisdiction of the New Paltz and Gardiner post offices. By reaching everyone in the community in this manner it is hoped that there will be a large registration this year. Any person not attending an elementary school or high school is eligible to take part. Anyone who has not received a booklet may secure one by calling the high school.

Frederick C. Dippel, director of Adult Education at the high school, has announced that there are 18 courses to be started next week. These courses are free except in one or two cases where slight charges are made to cover the cost of materials used. ## Variety of Textures Shown

The sleek rayon crepe dress that can be worn now or under your winter coat later on has returned to fashion importance this year. Narrow dress (left) with three-quarter sleeves and neat collar has leopard buttons as trim. Town dress (center) is artfully seamed for perfect fit, has long, narrow sleeves. Cardigan neckline and wide cummerbund focus interest on the bodice (right) of this rayon crepe. All three have firm, crisp fabric texture. There are also many soft, fluid crepes this fall.

The Mature Parent

'Perfect Parents' Don't Know Mutual Thanks and Respect

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Carol Folsom, 7, had a new apricot-colored dress which she cherished. One day she got a cherry stain on its bodice. When she brought it anxiously to her mother, Mrs. Folsom said, "I'm not sure the stain will come out. Take your dress off and I'll see what I can do."

Then, leaving dinner carrots boiling on the stove, Mrs. Folsom went to the yard to take some wash from the line.

When she returned to the kitchen, Carol had not removed her dress. Instead she'd taken a can of combustible cleaning fluid and was industriously rubbing away at the stain on her bodice. The kitchen was heavy with fumes from the open can and Carol stood less than a foot away from the stove.

Mrs. Folsom dropped her wash, snatched the can and threw it out the open kitchen door. Then she seized Carol. She slapped, shook and screamed at her in a voice she didn't recognize.

At dinner that night, Carol ate very little. She didn't speak. When she shoved her dessert away irritably, her mother suddenly rose from the table.

"It's been a bad supper for me, too, darling," she said. "I'm terribly ashamed of what I did this afternoon. I was a bad mother. I hadn't any right to carry on so over the cleaning fluid because I know you haven't been told it mustn't be used indoors."

There was silence in the dining room when she left it. As she was stacking the dishes for washing, an arm appeared around the front of her waist. With her head against her mother's shoulder, Carol whispered, "You're NOT a bad mother" and burst into tears. "You're a good mother. You're the best one. I didn't mind you hitting me. I didn't mind, mommy."

So Carol and her mother hugged, feeling that they loved each other very much.

"Perfect parents" can experience a child's remorse, but not this kind of creative inter-flow of mutual gratitude and respect. Their claim to faultlessness makes any mutuality impossible with a child at fault.

Thus, to survive, children of such parents learn to blame themselves for every conflict that arises until guilt and self-distrust corrode their judgment, and their moral systems are paralyzed from lack of use.

Of such children, the great Czech writer, Franz Kafka has written a tragic allegory called "The Trial." In it, its hero is arrested one day. He doesn't know what crime he's committed nor the name of his accuser. He makes no effort to find out. So corrupted is his moral discernment that he passively accepts the judgment of death as he accepted the judgments of life.

I bet he had perfect parents. Not ones like Carol's mother.

Wimpy Club Plans Minstrel for Home

A benefit minstrel show for the West Park Orphanage has been announced for October 26 and 27 at the Orpheum Theatre, downtown, by Wimpy's Night Club, which hopes to draw large audiences on both dates.

Frank Oulton, veteran director of theatricals, is arranging a varied program for the show, and says that one of the novelties will be a mixed cast for the minstrel, with ladies of the club featured in blackface roles.

Oulton says the minstrel, with a variety show following, is overflowing with talent and promises a very entertaining time for all who patronize the benefit performances. The second part of the program will also feature leading singers and dancers of the area, with novelty attractions included.

Tickets are on sale by members of Wimpy's club, and also may be purchased at the door the nights of the minstrel, which is scheduled for 8:15 o'clock.

Harry Maisenhelder, who has been accompanist for various Oulton productions over a period of years, will play for the show, the first venture of a series of benevolent enterprises planned by the Monday Night Club.

Rains Are Promised

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—The Weather Bureau in its outlook for the next 30 days forecast drouth-relieving rains in a broad belt from Texas northeastward through the Ohio Valley to New England.

The bureau said the "outlook for the period from mid-October to mid-November calls for temperatures to average below seasonal normals from the Great Lakes region eastward to the Atlantic coast and also in the far south-west. Drouth-relieving rains are expected to result in greater than normal precipitation in a broad belt extending from Texas northeastward through the Ohio valley to New England, although these rains may not begin in quantity until about the end of October.

DOWNBEAT FOR FAIR—Little Francois Lesueur finds the Scrap Iron Fair in Paris an excellent opportunity to demonstrate his aptitude as a tympanist, at the same time drumming up attendance at the annual event.

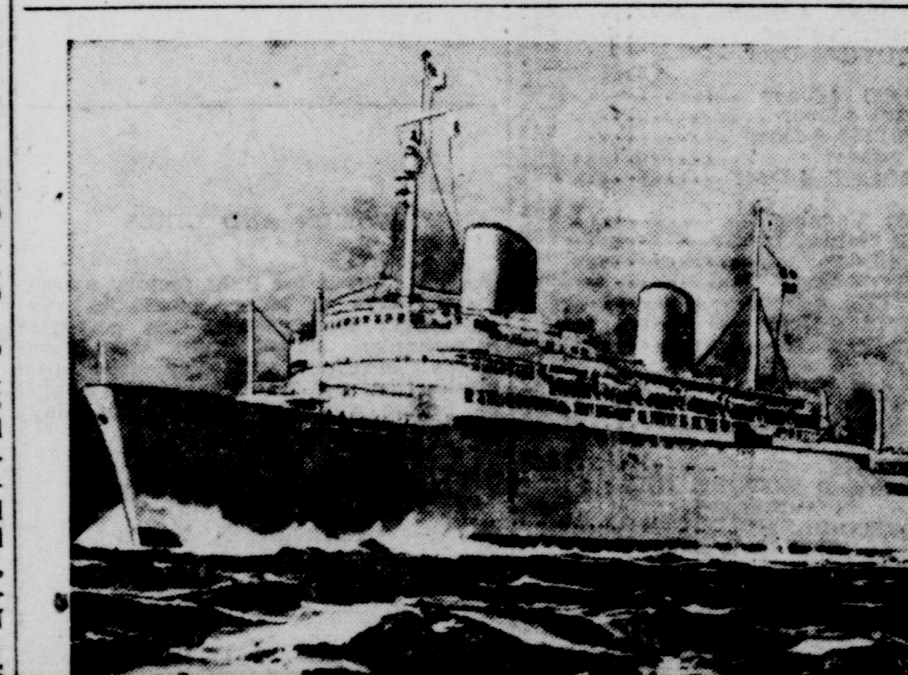

JAIL SAFER THAN FREEDOM?—You may not recognize him, but the man at the left is Jacques Monard, who is serving a 20-year prison sentence for the murder of Leon Trotsky, the Bolshevik leader. An excellent machinist, Monard instructs prisoners in the "Black Castle of Lecumberri," Mexico's federal penitentiary. He will soon be eligible to be considered for parole, but he may not apply since his life is threatened by vengeance-seeking Trotskyites and Stalinists, who fear he might talk and reveal accomplices who participated in the assassination.

Break Rules, but Give It Thought

By OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service

Bridge would be a very easy game if you could just rely on following the rules, anybody with a good memory would then be an expert.

Actually, it isn't as easy as all that. There are times when you have to break the rules, and it takes good judgment to know when that time comes and what to do.

Take today's hand for example. How should South play the trump suit? The old "rule" says "Don't finesse for a queen when you have nine cards of a suit."

Let's see where that gets South. West opens the jack of clubs, dummy covers with the king, and East wins with the ace. East continues with the queen of clubs and South ruffs. Following the old rule, South tries to draw trumps by laying down the ace and the king.

This lands South a nice soft nest in the garbage. West gets in with the ace of diamonds and leads a spade. South must lose a spade trick, giving up a trick in

Construction Firm Opens in Po'keepsie

The grand opening of the new Poughkeepsie branch of Edward Ehrbar, Inc., of Brooklyn, distributors of heavy construction equipment, was held this morning at the new plant building located on Route 9 about three miles south of Poughkeepsie.

The firm handles products of International Harvester, Loraine Crane, Adams Graders, Loraine Greene, it was said.

Approximately 400 persons attended the opening, it was reported, including officials representing manufacturers of equipment handled by Ehrbar.

The new building is reported to be about 250 feet long, brick, painted white, with showroom, parts department and general office.

Must Pay Half Earnings

Los Angeles, Oct. 17 (AP)—Dick Haymes' attorney last night said the government has agreed to accept half of the crooner's gross earnings until his overdue income tax of about $50,000 is paid in full. "Mr. Haymes will have to live on the remaining 50 per cent of his income," Atty. David Marcus said, "and must pay up other debts including alimony on that amount, but he is very grateful for the opportunity to continue working." Haymes, recently married to actress Rita Hayworth at Las Vegas, Nev., is now singing at the Shermack Hotel in Houston, Tex. The Internal Revenue Bureau placed a tax lien on his salary there Wednesday.

Would Hike Exemptions

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Stanley Rutenberg, CIO research director, proposes that the government slash income taxes at the first sign of a recession by increasing the personal exemptions. Rutenberg made the suggestion yesterday at a CIO-sponsored tax conference. He also accused "some people in the administration" of trying to put across ideas, which he termed "unfactual," that the present income tax structure has reached its limit in yielding revenue and that the excise (sales) tax structure can be corrected only by applying such taxes to a wider range of goods at a flat rate.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Break Rules, but Give It Thought

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Bridge would be a very easy game if you could just rely on following the rules, and it takes good judgment to know when that time comes and what to do.

Take today's hand for example. How should South play the trump suit? The old "rule" says "Don't finesse for a queen when you have nine cards of a suit."

Let's see where that gets South. West opens the jack of clubs, dummy covers with the king, and East wins with the ace. East continues with the queen of clubs and South ruffs. Following the old rule, South tries to draw trumps by laying down the ace and the king.

This lands South a nice soft nest in the garbage. West gets in with the ace of diamonds and leads a spade. South must lose a spade trick, giving up a trick in each suit. This is one trick more than he can afford.

The story is quite different if South looks at the hand as a whole instead of worrying about the trump suit. South can afford to lose one club, one diamond, and one trump—provided that he doesn't lose a spade trick. The way to avoid losing a spade trick is to keep West out of the lead as much as possible.

Hence South ruffs the second club, cashes the king of hearts, and then finesses dummy's jack of hearts. When the finesse succeeds, the rest is easy. South can draw the last trump, knock out the ace of diamonds, and discard two spades on dummy's extra diamonds, making 11 tricks.

But South would make his contract even if the finesse of the jack of hearts happened to lose (as it would if East had Q-x of trumps). East would be unable to return a spade safely, so he would return a diamond. West would take the ace of diamonds and return a spade, but declarer could

Construction Firm Opens in Po'keepsie

The grand opening of the new Poughkeepsie branch of Edward Ehrbar, Inc., of Brooklyn, distributors of heavy construction equipment, was held this morning at the new plant building located on Route 9 about three miles south of Poughkeepsie.

The firm handles products of International Harvester, Loraine Crane, Adams Graders and Barber Greene, it was said.

Approximately 400 persons attended the opening, it was reported, including officials representing manufacturers of equipment handled by Ehrbar.

The new building is reported to be about 250 feet long, brick, painted white, with showroom, parts department and general office.

Must Pay Half Earnings

Los Angeles, Oct. 17 (AP)—Dick Haymes' attorney last night said the government has agreed to accept half of the crooner's gross earnings until his overdue income tax of about $50,000 is paid in full. "Mr. Haymes will have to live on the remaining 50 per cent of his income," Atty. David Marcus said, "and must pay up other debts including alimony on that amount, but he is very grateful for the opportunity to continue working." Haymes, recently married to actress Rita Haynes at Las Vegas, Nev., is now singing at the Shermrock Hotel in Houston, Tex. The Internal Revenue Bureau placed a tax lien on his salary there Wednesday.

Would Hike Exemptions

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Stanley Ruttenberg, CIO research director, proposes that the government slash income taxes at the first sign of a recession by increasing the personal exemptions. Ruttenberg made the suggestion yesterday at a CIO-sponsored tax conference. He also accused "some people in the administration" of trying to put across ideas, which he termed unfactual, that the present income tax structure has reached its limit in yielding revenue and that the excise (sales) tax structure can be corrected only by applying such taxes to a wider range of goods at a flat rate.
